Liberal lead shaky in Canadian vote

TORONTO (AP) — First returns in Canada's national election Tuesday showed Robert Stanfield's Conservative party leading in the Atlantic provinces in some districts which normally are in the Liberal camp. In solidly Liberal Newfoundland, the Conservatives picked up one seat and lead in other districts.

Stanfield, a former premier of Nova Scotia, had been expected to do well in the Maritimes, but Newfoundland had been counted to remain in the Liberal camp. The main returns are yet to come from populous Quebec and Ontario provinces which held the key to the election.

Newspapers across the country had predicted that Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau would be returned to Ottawa with a Liberal majority in Parliament.

By 9:15 p.m. (EDT) the Liberals had elected 66 members and the Conservatives 24, while the Liberals were leading in 50 other districts and the Conservatives in 20.

Dalton Camp, Conservative party national president, was defeated in Toronto by a Liberal candidate, newcomer Robert Kaplan.

What had been a hard-fought but quiet political campaign wound up in a bloody melee Monday night when the 48-year-old prime minister appeared on the reviewing stand at a Montreal parade by the St. Jean Baptiste Society.

Before the streets were cleared 135 persons had been hospitalized and 290 arrested. The disorders began as an anti-Trudeau demonstration by Quebec separatists and turned into a wild clash in which bottles and other missiles were hurled.

One bottle narrowly missed Trudeau but he refused to leave the stand despite entreaties by security officials. Asked why he wouldn't leave Trudeau said: "I was curious. I wanted to see what was happening."

Later the prime minister declared: "I hope the population will reject violence as a means of expressing opinions and that people who use this means will be rejected by society."

Trudeau cast his vote in his home district in Montreal shortly after the polls opened. He then flew to Ottawa to await the election results.

Conservative party leader Robert Stanfield voted in Halifax and returned to his home where he said he might do some gardening while waiting for the results. He is 54, a former premier of Nova Scotia and like Trudeau is a newcomer to national politics.

The campaign was largely a personality contest between Stanfield and the prime minister, who succeeded Lester B. Pearson as head of the government April 20. Trudeau called the election three days later in the hope of achieving a majority in Parliament, an objective never reached by Pearson.

Democrats debate budget

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House engaged in a lengthy debate Tuesday night on Democratic amendments proposing to cut Gov. Shafer's $1.7 billion general appropriation bill by $24 million.

The Senate, meanwhile, continued to move on Shafer's $2 billion budget for the 1968-69 fiscal year beginning July 1 by approving $132.5 million in money bills for state-related and state-aided colleges, universities and hospitals.

The minority House Democrats had some 60 reductions to offer, even though the initial proposals in the package were defeated on almost straight party line voting.

The huge general appropriations bill, which was passed by the Senate two weeks ago, 44-0, covers 80 per cent of state spending in a given fiscal year.

The Senate, which concluded a late session at 7 p.m., marked time awaiting House action on the measure. Senate concurrence in a $720,000 increase for Cheyney State College was necessary before the bill could be sent to Shafer.

Included in the money bills approved by the Senate were $59.2 million for Pennsylvania State University and $32 million for the University of Pittsburgh, two of the state's three state-related universities.

A $31.4 million appropriation to Temple University, the third state-related institution of higher learning, was passed over, along with $2.4 million for Jefferson Medical College and $1.5 million for Hahnemann Medical College.

All three schools are in Philadelphia.

Senate Democratic Minority Leader Ernest P. Kline, D-Beaver, conceded there were "some problems" in his caucus over the bills but predicted their passage in the near future.

In addition to the Penn State and Pitt appropriations, other major measures sent to the House by the Senate included: $11.8 million for the University of Pennsylvania; $8.8 million for operating grants to community colleges and $5.9 million for capital assistance to community colleges.

Senate Democrats inserted amendments into 10 of the bills specifying that if the affected institutions should receive a separate appropriation for doctoral programs, the amount would be deducted from their regular allocation.

"We want to make it clear that these institutions could expect no additional funds for doctoral education," Kline said.

Jersey gas tax hiked cent a gallon

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—Gov. Richard J. Hughes signed into law Tuesday a penny-a-gallon increase in New Jersey's gasoline tax and a one per cent increase in the corporate net income tax.

Hughes signed a bill to increase the gasoline tax from 6 to 7 cents effective July 1. The hike is designed to bring in $26 million.

He also placed his signature on a measure to raise the state's corporate net income tax by one per cent to 4.25 per cent. The increase will produce an estimated $28.5 million and took effect immediately.

The governor previously approved an increase of three cents per pack in the cigarette tax to 14 cents but has yet to sign a measure to produce an estimated additional $20 million in state revenue by raising motor vehicle registration fees.

Abernathy given 20-day sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Poor People's Campaign mule train made a wide sweep through muggy Washington Tuesday, but those in the wagons were discouraged from trying to follow their leader, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, to jail.

Abernathy was sentenced earlier to 20 days imprisonment but other campaign leaders remained free.

Tension in the city, where temperatures have been peaking in the 90s, still was evident but as dusk approached, officials decided against repeating the night hours curfew they imposed Monday when sporadic violence flared in Negro sections.

Mayor Walter E. Washington announced that "if any emergency should arise requiring a curfew it will be instituted."

"These were the day's main developments," Abernathy, maintaining his arrest Monday on Capitol Hill cut short an attempt to "get food for hungry people in this richest and most affluent society," was sentenced to 20 days in jail after pleading no contest to a charge of unlawful assembly on the Capitol grounds.

A demolition crew of 400 worked at top speed to tear down and cart away Resurrection City.

Communist curbs condemned

NATO pledges Berlin access

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—The 15 North Atlantic allies told the Russians and East Germans Tuesday night they stand ready to keep open Berlin's lifelines to the West.

In a communique winding up their two-day spring session, they condemned new Communist curbs on traffic to the divided city as "a deliberate attempt to jeopardize détente"—meaning East-West accommodation.

With France standing aloof, the allies nevertheless offered the Communist part of Europe a chance to join in a program of balanced force cuts in the Eastern and Western parts of the continent. To reinforce their negotiating position in case that offer is picked up, the ministers ruled out any one-sided troop or armament withdrawals from the allied part of Europe unless the Reds do the same. This move will enable President Johnson's administration to argue more effectively against congressional pressure groups wanting a cut-back of America's more than 200,000-strong garrisons in Europe.

In another significant development, the ministers alerted their staffs to prepare for action countering the buildup of Soviet naval power in the Mediterranean. American sources said this could involve a transfer of NATO's Mediterranean headquarters from Malta which is under pressure to accept Soviet favors. And it also could involve calling forward a NATO naval task force under the American Sixth Fleet if any emergency arises.

On Berlin, the NATO Council chose with care their warning to the East: "They squarely pinned onto Russia responsibility for anything imperiling Berlin's right to preserve land, water and air links with the West."

—They reaffirmed terms of a 10-year-old pledge binding each to join in defending "the security and welfare" of the former German capital.

This allied statement followed secret American-British-French-French-West German talks Sunday night on how to retaliate if the Communist squeezeplay tightens. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, Ambassador Roger Seydoux of France and West German Vice-Chancellor Willy Brandt have since ordered envoys in Bonn to prepare a series of counter-measures that might have to be taken if the situation worsens or does not ease. These talks in Bonn already are under way. The nature of projected counter-action was kept confidential.

CHICAGO (AP) — Connecticut lawmakers won't talk about it. Florida and Washington won't permit it. Michigan is trying to get rid of it.

The subject is the state income tax which is rapidly becoming the favorite tune of state legislative bands when they tangle with the problem of paying the cost of living in the 1960s.

In 1967 state income tax collections totaled $6 billion, a jump of 16 per cent from 1966.

Sales taxes remained the biggest source of revenue with $10.7 billion of the total $54.2 billion in state and local taxes derived from this source.

The sales tax jump was 8.4 per cent from 1966 and only Colorado and Oklahoma declined in sales tax revenue while Illinois, Nevada, Ohio and Wisconsin jumped more than 10 per cent and Rhode Island and Wyoming increased the sales tax take 20 per cent.

All forms of state and local taxes increased revenues in 1967 but none gained as much as income tax which 38 states collect from their residents.

An example of how lucrative this levy can be is in California where $1.6 billion was collected last year.

Allies primed for attack; five U.S. helicopters crash

SAIGON (AP) — An intensified allied drive to thwart a new enemy threat against Saigon resulted in a series of five helicopter crashes that killed 19 American and 16 Thai troops, the U.S. Command reported Tuesday.

The heaviest toll came early Tuesday when two troop-carrying choppers collided and exploded in bad weather and the blast downed another helicopter flying nearby. All 12 American crewmen and 16 Thai infantrymen aboard the three craft were killed.

Military spokesmen said the triple air disaster occurred as an armada of U.S. Army helicopters was lifting Thai troops on a mission 16 miles southwest of Saigon. They were flying through bad weather, with cloud formations down to 200-300 feet and visibility only half a mile.

Another helicopter was shot down by enemy ground fire 19 miles southwest of Saigon Monday while searching for enemy troop positions. Both crewmen were killed.

The fifth chopper went down Monday afternoon in the Nha Be River, nine miles southeast of Saigon. Five Army men were killed, including the pilot, a battalion commander and his executive officer. This crash was listed as an accident.

Helicopter activity has intensified in recent days as allied forces have tried to tighten a

Icy ocean tide kills tropical fish

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — An icy underwave tide sucked from the depths of the Atlantic Ocean by Hurricane Brenda killed thousands of tropical fish along 70 miles of Florida coast, a marine biologist said Tuesday.

The fish—brightly-colored denizens of Gulf Stream reefs—were stunned by the chilling waters and their bloated bodies surfaced.

Lt. Ron Purdom of the Florida Board of Conservation said divers tried to swim 60 feet to the reefs but were stopped by temperatures dropping from 65 degrees at the surface to 43 degrees 30 feet down.

"Further down, naturally, temperatures were much lower," Purdom said.

Hundreds of pounds of fish—angelfish, trumpet fish, file fish, cardinal fish, triple tails and reef bass—were picked up at sea but winds kept the carcasses from washing onto beaches, Purdom said.

Heavenly jolt could lead to 2nd chance

NEW YORK (AP) — Being struck by lightning puts you on one of "the few two-way streets to heaven," a famous physician says.

It's a two-way street because more people apparently recover from lightning bolts than are killed, and even seemingly dead victims might often be resuscitated, says Dr. Helen B. Taussig of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

"If you are with persons who have been struck by lightning, remember that those who are stunned but alive are not the ones who most urgently need help," she says.

"Such persons will probably soon recover. It is the man who is 'dead' who needs help. Artificial respiration may get him breathing again and his heart going again, Dr. Taussig writes in the June issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

"When the heart starts," she adds, "continue artificial respiration until you get the man to the nearest hospital."

"He has traveled on one of the few two-way streets to heaven. Although his trip to heaven was fantastically short, and his trip back may take days or weeks,

LBJ's mail on guns shifting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's second shot at more stringent gun legislation appears headed for approval by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but the House is cool to the administration bid.

Presidential assistant Joseph A. Califano Jr., reported Tuesday White House mail is running about 4 to 1 in favor of more effective gun laws, although there has recently been an increase in letters against Johnson's stand.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said mail from his home state protests stricter gun laws and is overwhelmingly opposed to federal gun curbs.

The President has requested a law requiring the registration of all firearms and licensing of gun owners if states fail to enact laws meeting federal licensing standards.

He signed a gun control bill passed by Congress a few days ago, but this was aimed at curbing sales only of handguns. The new legislation sought by Johnson would apply to all weapons.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said a bill including elements of various pending proposals to tighten firearms law will likely be approved Thursday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Dirksen, the committee's ranking Republican, said he expects the legislation to be a compound of three bills.

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—A 26-year-old Raubsville man was missing and presumed drowned after he disappeared while swimming in the Delaware River south of here Tuesday night.

Underwater search teams were seeking the body of William Hilder, who came to Raubsville only six weeks ago from Wilkes-Barre.

'Limited' strikes studied

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Governor's Commission to Revise the Public Employee Law of Pennsylvania, after a month's study, recommended Tuesday that the state recognize a public employee's "limited" right to strike.

The recommendation was one of several key provisions of a proposed new Public Employees Act suggested to replace the state's 21-year old statute, which forbids strikes and fails to provide for collective bargaining.

Another major portion of the commission's report would make collective bargaining mandatory in any dispute involving state or municipal employees. The report sets a uniform pattern for bargaining based on three steps:

- Face-to-face collective bargaining.
- The utilization of the State Mediation Service.
- Fact-finding and recommendations.

Only after this pattern is complete and fails to yield results are public employees permitted to strike, but under strict "safeguards."

Should the strike threaten the "health, safety, or welfare of the general public," the union or professional organization would be subject to injunctions, fines, and imprisonments. A common pleas court judge ruling on the injunction would determine if the strike exceeded the standards imposed on it by law.

The "right to strike" provision would not apply to police and firemen, who are bound to compulsory arbitration by a bill signed Monday by the governor.

Gov. Shafer commented on his commission's report in a brief news conference Tuesday. Although explaining that he had not yet studied the document.

Some are figments of enterprising merchandisers. A lingerie manufacturer who had produced a line of white night gowns with the initials of candidates across the fronts had to withdraw his LBJ number and hastily substitute an HHHH version.

A tie manufacturer is playing it safer by settling for just two insignias, elephants and donkeys.

"To keep his name before the public in every way," as pop art collector Mrs. Robert C. Scull put it, boosters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy recently opened a boutique in New York called "McCarthy's Mart."

Among the McCarthyana are $100 campaign buttons for evening wear studded with diamonds, rubies, and sapphires, as well as recorded poetry. The profit from sales is a side benefit to the publicity, the No. 1 reason for campaign fashions.

Not yet ready to come off the Bunsen burner is a boutique in Washington, D.C., for Hubert H. Humphrey to be called "The Pharmacy" because the vice president almost wound up filling prescriptions.

Candidates' fashions display their message

NEW YORK (AP) — A presidential campaign ago, an oversized button, a breast banner or a paper hat was enough for a candidate wishing to use fashions for his message.

But this year, women are expected to be walking billboards, advertising their political allegiances from the bands of their hats to the bows on their toes.

As candidates have entered the arena—or withdrawn—various aspects of the fashion in-

State queen introduced to Assembly

HARRISBURG (AP) — Miss Pennsylvania, Susan Robinson of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., paid a visit to the General Assembly Tuesday and captivated the lawmakers with her Southern charm and accent.

"I'm just so proud to be here," the 21-year-old blonde said after being introduced to members of the House and Senate.

Miss Robinson won the Miss Pennsylvania title at Hershey June 15, representing Allegheny County. She recently was graduated from Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Although admitting a preference for Southern fried chicken over the Pennsylvania Dutch delicacy of chicken corn soup, she said the four years she has studied in Pennsylvania have made her "fall in love with the state."

Illegal GI mail cutback by tougher inspections

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Pentagon official claims tough inspection measures have "reduced to a trickle" the flow of illegal souvenir guns and other weapons from Vietnam to the United States.

Frank Bartimo, head of a special Defense Department committee, said in an interview that only eight weapons were intercepted by customs authorities who went through mail packages in San Francisco during the first two weeks of May.

This compared with 71 weapons seized in February.

Bartimo, the Pentagon's assistant general counsel, said this drop is an indicator of the effectiveness of inspections of servicemen's mail and homeward bound luggage.

Since February, military authorities in Vietnam have used 40 mine detectors, among other means, to ferret out weapons, grenades and other illegal arms from the baggage and packages of American servicemen.

Now the Pentagon has approved a somewhat more sophisticated inspection device—a portable x-ray machine.

The interception effort is a joint operation of the U.S. military and U.S. customs authorities.

It has been accompanied by wide publicity in troop information publications and newspapers, as well as television and radio, and has emphasized that violators may be court-martialed.

Bartimo said the Pentagon has broadened this to a worldwide effort, in hopes of shutting off the movement of illegal arms and drugs into the United States via homecoming soldiers and homeward bound baggage and mail.

Detection devices are used both in San Francisco and New York, the main ports for which service mail and luggage enter the United States from overseas, Bartimo said.

Customs Bureau figures cited by Bartimo also show that seven packages containing explosives were intercepted in San Francisco in the first two weeks of May, compared to 27 in February.

There was a more dramatic drop off in seized shipments of stolen property, such as combat boots and camouflaged clothing.

In March, customs authorities grabbed 1,169 shipments of stolen U.S. property. Only 66 shipments were confiscated in the first half of May.

The intensified effort was touched off by a spot check by customs authorities who seized 56 weapons, including switchblade knives and 12 packets of marijuana and narcotics in one day last November.

Senate backs anti-missile defense system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overrode stiff opposition Monday and voted a go-ahead for administration plans to begin deployment of the "thin" shield Sentinel antiballistic missile defense system.

The majority rejected a move to delete a $227.3-million authorization for purchase of land for ABM sites and initial construction of facilities.

The authorization is part of a $1.8-billion military construction bill, already passed by the House, for hundreds of projects around the world.

Still pending in Congress are the military procurement bill and Atomic Energy legislation which also include Sentinel funds.

The vote to keep the funds intact was 52 to 34. The final vote on the over-all bill was then put off until today.

The ABM system is designed as a defense against potential Red Chinese nuclear attack capabilities in the 1970s. The administration, contended it is necessary as a deterrent against a growing Chinese missile force. But Senate advocates of the plan discussed it largely in terms of the first step toward a thick system that would be oriented toward the Soviet Union.

The cost of the thin system has been estimated at $5.5 billion and a thick one at as much as $50 billion.

Critics, led by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Phillip A. Hart, D-Mich., argued there is no guarantee that the China-oriented system would even work. And they said the cost is too high in view of domestic needs and the demands for economy.

Besides, they said, the urgency for the ABM has eased because of a lag in Red China's development of a missile capability.

The opponents were backed by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, who coupled his criticism of the system with an attack on the Johnson administration.

In a speech before the vote,

McCarthy said the decision to go ahead with the ABM is a good example of "an attempt to buy security through misplaced, simplistic reliance on technology rather than by facing up more realistically and constructively to problems that are in fact primarily political in nature."

Debate over the ABM was long, often heated and drew in several other leading members of the Senate.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., argued that an ABM system would be "obsolete before it is even completed."

He said four of the five major components of the ABM "have yet to be developed, let alone tested," and there was no risk in the year's delay proposed by backers of the amendment to cut the funds.

Supporters of the proposal held that research and development could continue on the ABM if the actual deployment plans were deferred.

BANGOR — Bangor Area School Board adopted a school budget for the 1968-1969 school year of $2,815,402 Monday night. Last year's budget was given as $2,134,245 as spent for the year.

Last year, school officials noted that the district operated on 27 mills while the new budget calls for an increase of 6 mills to 33 mills.

Other taxes established for the year were 100 mill occupation tax; a one half of 1 per cent earned income tax; a $5 per capita tax under Act 679 and a $10 per capita tax under Act 115.

The new budget calls for an increase of $250,150 over the 1967-1968 budget. The projected budget is just some $50,000 above that which was projected four years ago as to the anticipated cost to operate the district.

District income to be received from local sources is $1,703,642; state sources, $1,052,682; federal sources, 29,000 and $60,158 reserve from the 1967-1968 budget.

Major expenditures will be instruction $1,364,000; administration, $109,300; transportation, $187,500; plant operation, $171,750; plant maintenance, $136,550; capital outlay, $37,500; debt services, $466,200 and outgoing transfers, $210,000.

Man hurt when truck loses brakes

MARSHALLS CREEK — A 43-year-old East Stroudsburg R.D. 1 man is in satisfactory condition in General Hospital of Monroe County following a car-truck accident Monday at 7:10 a.m. in the intersection of Business Rt. 209 and Rt. 209 in Marshalls Creek.

Donald Mutchler was injured when his car was struck by a truck which lost its brakes.

The truck was driven by Kenneth Phillippy, 43, of Lebanon. He was not injured.

According to State Police from Stroudsburg, Phillippy was traveling north on Rt. 209. When he approached the intersection he applied his brakes. The brakes failed to operate and the truck, which was traveling south on Business Rt. 209 loaded with furniture, collided with the Mutchler vehicle.

Police estimate damage to the truck at $3,000 and $1,500 to the Mutchler car.

Court okays Bangor's new incinerator

BANGOR — Northampton Court has given Bangor Borough Council permission to construct an incinerator plant next to the present dump in North Bangor.

Court grant approval Monday after no objectors appeared to protest the advertised proposal scheduled to be brought before court Monday.

Monday night, Bangor council voted to go ahead with the project.

The borough has advertised for construction bids and expects to award a contract in the near future, according to the petition submitted to court.

Blue Ridge will start modernization

BANGOR — The Blue Ridge-Winkler plant in Bangor will undergo a $500,000 modernization, according to an announcement made Tuesday by company officials.

Marcel J. Noe, president, said the program will be carried out over a six to eight month period.

Noe said most of the money will be used to purchase the modern dyeing and finishing equipment for the textile plant.

The company's workforce of 300 will not be affected by the program, Noe said.

Band to play at nursing home

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Crystal Band of Scranton will present a free concert on the lawn at the Holiday Hill Nursing Home, Newfoundland, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Rain date is July 11.

An invitation to anyone who would like to enjoy the music has been extended by Holiday Hill personnel.

The sports schedules for the 1968-1969 school year were approved as presented to Dr. Trevor Williams, senior high principal, and Faculty Manager Earl Lantz.

Permission was also granted to all office staff of the district, and custodians and maintenance personnel to have vacation days on July 4 and 5.

Defendant changes plea

MILFORD — William L. Stahl changed his plea for the second time in a Pike County court June 25. By pleading guilty to charges of possessing obscene literature with the intent to sell or distribute it the defendant terminated his jury trial before the first witness was called.

Stahl's action was taken shortly after District Attorney William C. Gumble made his opening remarks to the jury. A few hours later, Stahl returned to court for sentencing. Stahl was accompanied by his attorney, Public Defender Robert J. Kayton, who presented some background information on the defendant prior to the imposing of sentence.

The defendant was sentenced to pay the cost of prosecution, a fine of $100 and undergo imprisonment in the Pike County Jail for not less than five months or more than one year. The sentence is to be computed from Feb. 5 when Stahl was first arrested by Trooper James Colbert, the prosecutor in the case.

Since Stahl is in violation of parole in New Jersey it is believed that he may be paroled to the custody of officers in that state.

State grange leadership school deals with law enforcement

GETTYSBURG — With National Grange officials and guest educators for faculty, the 45th Pennsylvania State Grange Leadership School today will deal with crime and law enforcement and a wide range of technical topics of concern to the 643 subordinate Granges throughout the state.

John W. Scott, Harrisburg, state master and national secretary of the organization, said the 400-member school promises to be one of the most successful in the long history of these projects.

Mrs. Arthur W. Christman, Bowmanstown, state lecturer, presided. The school closes Thursday noon.

Panel discussions marked a series of workshops. Speakers included Roth Ann Wilson, clothing specialist, the Pennsylvania State University, and five Penn State extension home economists, Miss June Wilke, West Chester; Mrs. Ada B. Konhaus, Carlisle; Mrs.

Bangor council purchases 14 acres of land for $28,500

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council Monday approved the purchase of 14 acres of land adjacent to the present Bangor

Memorial Park at a cost of $28,500.

Purchase of the land, owned by the Green property, is contingent upon the council's receiving a substantial amount of funds from Project 70. The opinion was expressed that the borough might be able to secure some $11,000 from this source within 60 days.

The decision to buy the land followed lengthy discussion. In the action, votes against the purchase were recorded by Larry Krauss, Roderick Everett and Alphonso Visigaldi.

In favor were John Melzgar, Frederick Jones, Rex Erdman, Troy Riegel, Samuel Hicks, John Cascioli, Daniel Phillips and Merlin Tucker.

Cascioli, Jones, Erdman and Hicks were named to contact Green since the borough option on the property will end on July 3.

Merlin Tucker, council president was authorized to sign a policy release for former member of the police force, Rodger Weidlick and Mayor William D. Scott informed council that property owners who have been failing to cut weeds and brush on their properties have been properly notified and unless they take steps to correct the problem the borough will take appropriate action.

Mayor Scott also reported on his meeting with state officials regarding Martins Creek in which it was felt that the area from Pennsylvania Ave., to Market Street could be cleared for about $2000. Council also is considering what action will be taken on the creek bed from Market Street to the area beneath buildings on Main Street in order to clear the stream.

Complaints were presented to council regarding properties of John Heller on Broadway and also relative to properties of John Turizo on Main and Market and on South Main Street. Action on the matter is being investigated by the mayor and borough solicitor.

Pen Argyl school taxes increased

PEN ARGYL — A record budget for the 1968-1969 school year of $1,672,653 and a four-mill real estate tax increase was unanimously approved by the Pen Argyl School Board Monday.

The budget represents an increase of $138,546 over last year's budget.

The new tax program for the 1968-1969 school year will be somewhat the same as last year, except an increase in the real estate tax from 26 to 30 mills which is estimated to return $599,853 as compared to $509,896 last year.

The tax hike 4 mills is the first increase in school taxes in the last two years. Other taxes reenacted include a $5 per capita tax under P.L. 679 to yield $23,974; a $5 per capita tax under Act 511 to yield the same figure; a 100 mill occupation tax to yield $78,132 and a one percent earned income tax to return approximately $101,000.

Revenue from state and federal sources is estimated to be $632,981.

Budget expenditures include administration, $92,220; instruction, $918,172; transportation, $50,432; plant operation, $110,897; fixed charges, $87,921; capital outlay, $82,272 and debt services, $152,750 plus other outlays.

Teacher's salaries were increased from a minimum beginning salary of $5,200 to $5,700.

The board hired the following teachers: Mrs. Nancy Bowman, of North Whitehall as a German teacher; Mrs. Janet Berger Shimer, of Stroudsburg R.D. 3 as a developmental reading teacher.

In view of the increased enrollments in German classes, the board authorized that an additional German teacher be employed. David Overdorf, guidance director, was employed for an additional two weeks July 8 to July 19.

Mrs. Valerie McKay of Stroudsburg was appointed high school student council advisor.

The board approved the admission of Miss Elba Tejera Aguerrevere, American Field Service student from Venezuela to the high school without tuition.

The board decided that the district should contract with the Northampton-Monroe-Pike Instruction Materials Center to participate at an approximate cost of $1,400.

James R. Tinney of Pen Argyl was appointed as a nominee to serve as a school representative on the Northampton County Area Community College Authority.

Volkswagen's electronic brain.
It's smarter than a carburetor.

Alas, the carburetor.
Decent and hard-working though it was, it just couldn't think.

So every now and then it would do thoughtless little things. Like get everything dirty. Waste gas. Shamelessly pollute the air.

Our new computer would never behave that way.

In the first place, it's too educated to get everything dirty.

It's always properly informed about changes in the speed, engine temperature and load. So it's always properly informed about what's improper.

And it's too shrewd to waste gas.

Since it knows everything precisely, it can decide everything precisely. And its decisions about how much fuel you need are so precise that you actually wind up burning less gas.

Finally, it's too prudent to pollute the air.

(No unburnt fuel around the engine means no unburnt fuel to evaporate in the atmosphere. Even the pollution from exhaust fumes is greatly reduced.)

Just think. When you get a carburetor-less VW Squareback or VW Fastback, you not only become the proud possessor of a sound body.

But of a brilliant mind.

Resurrection City didn't rise

Resurrection City passed into history on Monday of this week, and from our vantage point failed to reach its goal. Instead of casting a clear picture of poverty and need, it presented a negative that was plainly out of focus.

May we be the first to say that most Negroes in the south and many in the north are victims of poverty and are certainly in need of whatever help they can get. We are also in full agreement that such need must be satisfied, providing it is done in an approved and correct method.

The "Poor People's March," in order to be successful, had to impress all the people of the United States. However, even more than that, these people who inhabited Resurrection City had to impress the people of Washington. This list of personalities would include the President of the United States, his cabinet, the Senate, the House of Representatives and other kingpins of government.

Driving forces fail

If those driving forces behind the march really expected to gain new legislature, outright gifts, new jobs, etc., they had to impress key cogs of government. This they failed to accomplish.

The leaders of the march resided in the best hotels and motels of Washington during their stay in the nation's capital. They didn't live in the rain and mud as did their followers. They were dry and warm all the time, despite their uniforms of torn and tattered clothes.

The entire campaign lacked the sincerity and forcefulness necessary to make it successful. There was too much squabbling between various leaders of the march and between the leaders and followers. There were many acts of violence reported in Resurrection City and on the city streets and charged to residents of Resurrection City.

Leaders of the entire drive made a bad mark on the governing bodies and on hotels and motels in the Washington area. There was a general feeling of obstruction and an attitude that was less than desirable.

The entire drive was a series of demonstrations, arguments and a number of acts of violence. It was used by many of the so-called "leaders" to vault themselves into national prominence, with little regard for those who actually did the suffering in Resurrection City.

Maybe we come from the old school and maybe our time-worn thinking has grown so thin that it finally has lost its meaning. But, we feel that the only way in which poverty can be overcome is through work and gainful employment.

The answer certainly isn't an outright gift to the poor people of our nation. Rather, it is a strong program of teaching trades and providing employment. It is a future of opportunity and hope, not one of a $10 bill in every wallet. Gifts of this type are soon forgotten and the benefits completely lost.

Individual struggle

It seems to us that the battle against poverty is an individual struggle and those rewarded are those who give of their time and strength to forwarding their own cause and that of their family. Nowhere along the line can we lose track of our pride and self esteem.

Those who are waging the war against poverty must accept an honorable victory and honorable victories come only through hard work and common sense. They come through a cooperative attitude and a feeling of pride in a job well done.

There was little of this in the "Poor People's March." There was very little that occurred during the encampment in Washington that could stimulate the pride of anyone involved.

True, the government can help and we feel it will help. But, those in government who can be of assistance must be impressed. Poor, but honest and hard-working, people never had any trouble impressing anyone.

They still won't have any difficulties. It is no crime to be poor.

Light side

With Gene Brown

Helping children to make the right decisions is a lot different from making the decisions for them, as everyone who has ever been a child or a parent knows. And reaching the right decisions involves right thinking. The child who for any reason grows up without developing the practice of straight, hard thinking is poorly equipped both for this life and for the life to come.

That Deflated Feeling

It was a delightful fall day and the four coeds skipped morning classes to go for a drive. After lunch, they reported to a teacher that their car had had a flat tire on the way to school that morning.

Much to their relief, she smiled understandingly and said, "Girls you missed a test this morning. Please take seats apart from one another and get out some notepaper."

When the girls were settled, and waiting expectantly, the teacher continued, "No talking please. Now write the answer to this question. 'Which tire was flat?'"

News or publicity?

It is increasingly difficult to detect the difference between publicity and news. Front page material is devised, engineered and executed. The city editors of the newspapers grow gray trying to detect the spontaneous event from the one that emerged from a conference of public pulse-takers.

In Washington, I looked at the tents beside the reflecting pool. The poor lived in yellow mud. Around them was the power structure: the White House, Congress, the Supreme Court. I asked myself if Rev. Abernathy hoped to bend the power structure to his will, or was he taking dead aim on network television. For awhile, he lived in a dry hotel. The others, in leaky tents, sunk to the ankles in mud.

Are we being fooled by public relations experts? The test, I guess, is to weigh each event and ask ourselves if it would have happened in a vacuum.

Richard Nixon's decision not to debate Nelson Rockefeller, nor to recite the political issues of our time, is a left-handed, anti-publicity publicity coup. Why should the champ—with enough delegate votes for nomination in his pocket—risk a fight in the arena with a challenger who is trying to draw attention to himself?

Heavy volume

Twenty percent of all the mail that comes across this desk is written by public relations organizations. Of this, half comes from departments of the United States government. Speeches written by publicity men for department heads to enunciate at lunches, dinners and commencements are baled and mailed, and move swiftly across this typewriter on their way to the wastebasket.

Everyone who employs a publicity man is automatically a good person. He is militant in his defense of motherhood, the flag, education, lower taxes and a halo for himself. Are the North Vietnamese in Paris for peace or publicity? Suppose the press of the world agreed not to publish anything about the peace talks for a month? Which side would be hurt by the silence?

I do not denounce the field of public relations. Often, the press agent is a good legman in bringing legitimate news to the city desk. The problem is in trying to pluck the weeds from the flowers.

A novelist named Norman Mailer joined an assault on the Pentagon. Did he hope for the surrender of McNamara's citadel? I doubt it. When his tattered band of intellectuals saw the law ahead, they quailed and said: "I surrender. Don't hit me." Television is the prime medium for protests. A march through Mississippi isn't worth a foot of film unless a helmeted trooper is seen swinging a club at an inoffensive Negro. The wrecking of a college dean's office is pointless unless the camera is in focus.

No one ever burned a draft card in a dark closet. The American people—an inarticulate mass without a press agent—would like congress to enact a strong anti-gun law that would make it difficult for emotionally unstable people to buy weapons. Our congress felt no compulsion to obey. Harold W. Glassen, president of the National Rifle Assn. issued a call to arms to 960,000 hunters to inundate the congress with letters opposing a strong gun law.

More articulate

The organized mass is always more articulate than the disorganized. Glassen's appeal made the front page of the New York Times. Before the Ecumenical Council opened in Rome, Archbishop Martin O'Connor was appointed publicity chief for the event. He had, for years, been head of the North American College in Rome. The journalists of the world trickled to his office to find out what was going on, and what it meant.

Publicity influences our daily lives. The spectrum embraces everything from politics to the pill. It is so big—and not necessarily evil, as I pointed out—that we may have to learn to interpret sources as we read. No organization fought Medicare as viciously as the American Medical Assn. and none embraced it as ardently. You must ask yourself why.

In the field of books, writing has become 50 percent of the work for the author. The other half is to get on television talk shows, cooking seminars and soap and sex shows. The critical reviews used to spell success or failure for my books. Today, I need Mike Douglas, Johnny Carson, Mervin Griffin and Hugh Downs.

I don't care whether you're a cop, a college, a cutie, a capitalist, a communist, a cherub, a corporation or a cause—you need a P.R. expert...

WASHINGTON — Ordinarily, I would not trouble you with an article regarding our mayor, since he is a local problem and cannot affect your life in the slightest (unless you should be so unfortunate as to visit here soon).

However, this is the capital city of the nation — or it was back when reasonable people were in charge — and our mayor was appointed by President Johnson. Therefore, perhaps a review of the mayor's recent activities is not without some national interest.

As even the most casual of newspaper readers and the most dull-witted of television viewers know, there is no small amount of crime in this city, not to mention riots and demonstrations. But Mayor Walter Washington won't admit this; he's telling prospective tourists this is a fun place to visit!

While he has failed to convince even suburbanites here that they should come downtown and shop (business has fallen off dreadfully), the mayor is still painting a rosy picture for out-of-towners and would-be conventioners. Obviously, he thinks he can fool them, since they can't know as much about the true situation as local citizens do.

Story for visitors

On a recent afternoon Mayor Washington told a group of visiting writers and broadcasters — some perhaps from your area — that Congressmen were playing up the "alleged lack of law and order here" just for something stirring to say in speeches back home.

The Washington crime situation has been "blown out of proportion," said the mayor. He then introduced the president of our local hotel association, who told the writers and broad-

The Allen-Scott Report

Daily violence

WASHINGTON — Two alarming trends are becoming increasingly manifest in the "poor people's" campaign.

(1) numerous instances of fights, assaults and other violence are now a daily occurrence in Resurrection City.

(2) SCLC leaders and other campaign officials are piling up debts and, in effect, browbeating businessmen into "negotiating" cut-rate settlements.

During the night following the mass "Solidarity Day" ceremonies, police reported 17 disturbances in the camp. They included a throat cutting, a fractured skull, as a result of one campaign marshal hitting another over the head with a plank, a number of robberies, and a near riot by a turbulent gang of camp youths who attacked police with rocks and bottles.

This threatened outbreak subsided when police warned they would use tear gas.

Latest instance of SCLC leaders engaging in a "shakedown" occurred at a leading Washington hotel two blocks from the White House.

Demand service

A group that included Dr. A. D. Williams King, brother of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, marched into the dining room demanding service. They were refused on the ground they were dressed in denims. After an argument they left, but returned around 10 p.m. with 80 other campaigners wearing denims. This time they were admitted and all ordered $5.95 steaks.

When a $495 bill was handed to Rev. King, he demanded to see the hotel manager, whom he informed he wanted to "negotiate" the charge. After a lengthy discussion, a $198 settlement was agreed on.

Later, Rev. Bernard Lafayette, a top SCLC official, told newsmen, "This could be called civil disobedience."

The episode followed one very similar several days earlier at a motel, where Rev. Ralph Abernathy, head of SCLC, and his assistants and their families had been staying since the start of the "Poor People's" campaign. Throughout the existence of the West Potomac Park shantytown, Abernathy and his large staff have never spent a night there.

The SCLC contingent occupied 30 of the motel's 50 rooms and suites for seven weeks at rates from $12 to $25 a day. When the bill reached $20,000, the owner asked for payment.

After some discussion, he was given a check for $17,000. The $3,000 balance is still unpaid, and he admits he doesn't know whether he will ever get it. He also admits he has difficulty with some of the campaigners, including two demonstrations by shantytown denizens who were peeved because Abernathy and the other SCLC moguls refused to live in the mud-mired camp.

Midtown motels

Soon thereafter, Abernathy and the other SCLC officials and their families left the motel and moved into midtown hotels and apartments.

Police report that the camp marshals are one of the causes of disturbances. There have been a number of brawls among the marshals, and some have been observed drunk and disorderly. They patently have not control over gangs of camp teenagers who rove the adjoining park areas robbing and attacking visitors.

In one instance six youths armed with tent poles and bottles confronted a group of police yelling, "We're going to get a honkey. Sock the whites."

Saleswomen of Washington's most fashionable and expensive downtown store told newsmen that Mrs. Coretta King, widow of the slain SCLC head, and a group of wives of officials of the organization shopped there and bought a number of high-priced summer dresses.

They paid in cash and without objection to the cost. The purchases were ordered delivered to leading capital hotels.

Show must go on

NEW YORK — People ... Places ...

Certainly am relieved that Mayor Lindsay was able to end the Broadway Theatre strike. If he had not stepped in and thrown his charisma around, well, we'd have to get along with such contributions to Mr. Shakespeare's profession as "hair," which seems to be about bottomless waiters.

For three whole nights not a single obscenity was uttered along the Great White Way. It was a hard period for pornography and imperiled the very existence of the four letter words.

But Broadway muddled through, like England during the Blitz.

Three-year-old Miss Kelly Considine, unmarried, was the flower girl at the wedding of her dear old Auntie, Debby.

"Are you really going to be the flower girl?" I demanded of her, incredulously.

"Yes."

"What do you have to do?"

"Be quiet," Miss Considine said solemnly.

Ten-year-old relative named Terry Mulligan had his first sip of champagne at a pre-wedding party. The bubbles inevitably ascended into his button nose, tickling it. He screwed up his face in a mighty grimace, and gulped.

The grimace relaxed. He smiled delightedly.

"How was it?" I asked.

"Beats spinach," the kid said.

Reminds me of the time I introduced Tom Subject of Mutual of Omaha to Crepes Suzette. It was at Antoine's, in New Orleans, which presents that delicacy with all the flair of a great theatrical production: dimmed lights, a splash of the flaming brandy on the table cloth, and the head waiter doing nip-ups and blowing kisses.

Tom chomped away. "What do you think?" I asked breathlessly. "Pancakes with bad syrup," the heretic muttered.

There are "bits and straws" that indicate to Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford the truce talks in Paris are going better than before. Apparently one of the North Vietnamese negotiators winked at Averell Harriman during a tea break.

Events could easily prove that the bum had a cinder in his eye.

We have not been told how Harriman reacted. He's a master negotiator. Was he tempted to wink back? Had he done so, and the man really did have a cinder in his eye would the man have taken offense at Harriman's mimicry of his condition? Will the fact that Harriman did not wink back present another obstacle on the agenda?

We won't know until the next tea break where all this is leading to.

Eastern Airlines and McDonnell-Douglas are conspiring to shuttle people back and forth among Washington, New York and Boston in a new French-designed propeller plane that can take off and land in little more than the length of a football field. It will carry 84 passengers, and have its own little strips off to one side of the big main runways—thus easing traffic.

This is the S T O L for "short takeoffs and landings." Next will come the V T O L for "vertical takeoffs and landings."

And finally, of course, we'll be strapped to our couches atop a Saturn V for a pleasant two-minute ride from here to Washington or Boston.

... Five ... Four ... Three ... Two ... One ... Ignition. Will you have coffee, tea or milk, or would you rather have a Martini?"

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Those devil drugs

a potential drug user.

It is obvious that your son, like many other children, banter words deliberately to indicate that they have graduated from being the "squares" their parents are. In most instances, it is an affection that is short lived and is of no real consequence. Yet parents cannot take a chance and disregard warnings that may suggest their children have been tempted to play around with pot, or marijuana, which is an easily purchased around schools as a candy bar. I can't allow my readers, and parents, to be "conned" into the line that pot isn't habit forming. Don't fall into that trap. Pot definitely causes psychic dependence and is the beginning of trouble.

The hazard is enormous with "pot" because smoking it is done in "sophisticated gangs" where temptation is great to try the mind bending drugs like LSD, DMT, and STP, all initials for psychological dynamite. I do not think there is one universal answer to the problem in your own family. I do know that whatever the answer is, it depends on knowing where your children are, what they are doing and who their friends are.

I know how I was able to handle the problem with my teenage daughter, but I do not believe that I have a vain right to feel that my way is the only way. I frankly insisted that a dinner table discussion of drugs deserved attention, but that my interest in books and Beethoven was greater. This was not meant to close out a discussion of drugs, but rather to reduce its importance.

Not made for bathing suit

I am writing this column from a bathhouse at a swimming pool not far from our house. Normally, I would wait until I got home to my typewriter, but I don't want to forget any of the details. Besides, I can't walk out side to the pool or my teenage daughter threatens to submerge herself under the water until she turns blue.

It all began the moment I slipped into my bathing suit and was fussing with my cap.

"Mother!" she shrieked. "You're not going swimming in that!"

"What's the matter with this suit? Is there a hole in the sleeve? A run in the stockings?"

"Go ahead, you can joke, but I'll die if you go outside in that. It's baggy. Maybe if you sucked in your stomach?"

"I am sucking in my stomach."

"And you don't have any support. The new suits come with support built right in."

"I don't deserve any. Besides, when you've carried babies..."

"Up there! Come on Mother. Stew Grimshaw's mother always has a new up-to-date suit. She looks groovy."

"Stew Grimshaw's mother is a size three and I never met a size three I could stand. As my dear uncle used to say, if she drank a cream soda and stood sideways she'd look like a recital thermometer."

"If you just had a two-piece suit," she sighed.

"If I had a two-piece the only

Abrams denies copter use

LONG BINH, Vietnam (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, has said "there is no formal, concrete, factual evidence" of enemy helicopters being used along the demilitarized zone.

Further, Abrams said, "there was no evidence" of North Vietnamese helicopters operating in North Vietnam's lower panhandle area above the zone between the two Vietnams.

The general's remarks were the latest in a week-long controversy that began with unconfirmed reports of enemy helicopters being shot down in the zone area the previous weekend.

Vietnamese military sources had said possibly a dozen choppers were shot down. The South Vietnamese commander in the northern provinces, Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, said six choppers were downed.

While Lam said he believed some of the enemy choppers — possibly Soviet-made MiGs — were down below the zone, it was never reported that any wreckage was recovered.

U.S. and Vietnamese troops along the line said they often saw moving lights at night which they took to be helicopters.

Abrams talked to The Associated Press after an installation ceremony for Lt. Gen. Frank T. Mildren, 54 the new deputy commander for the U.S. Army in Vietnam. Mildren is a native of Pima, Ariz., but now lists his home in Las Vegas, Nev.

Abrams added that the recent shift of more U.S. troops to new positions around the flanks of Saigon did not hurt American operations further afield.

Abrams said the new Saigon alignment meets an enemy troop buildup in the area.

150 surrender

Cong defector finds youth again

SAIGON (AP) — Ten days ago, Viet Cong soldier Phan Van Ty, 12 years old, shouldered his AK47 automatic rifle, closed his ammunition pouch and followed his squad leader into surrender.

After 12 days of battle in Saigon's northern Gia Dinh suburb the 12 soldiers in his squad had agreed to give up. They left their bunkers in a ruined villa and marched in formation toward an outpost of the South Vietnamese marines.

Their decision was the beginning of what was to become the biggest mass surrender from the ranks of an elite Viet Cong unit in the history of the Vietnamese war.

Sunday, this soldier Ty was a boy again. He fed sugar to elephants, happily cuddled a baby deer and laughed loudly as he watched the monkeys.

He and 70 of his former buddies in the Dong Nai Regiment were visiting the Saigon Zoo.

The 150 enemy soldiers who decided to surrender to the Saigon government rather than fight to death for the "liberation of Saigon" are now staying at the Chieu Hoi — open arms — rehabilitation center of the capital military district. They are not considered prisoners of war.

One Vietnamese officer explained: "They are under our protective custody and surveillance until they are able to decide what to do next with their lives."

Seventy-six of them were identified as soldiers of the North Vietnamese army and 74, including young Ty, were Viet Cong soldiers recruited in the South.

The shock and exhaustion from their lost battles in Gia Dinh seemed to have worn off. The hollow cheeks had filled again, and most soldiers older than Ty seemed more interested in ogling slim Saigonese girls than elephants.

The prisoners were well groomed as they strolled around the zoo park.

The ex-Viet Cong openly enjoyed walking down the middle of a parkway with no need to hide from low flying U.S. helicopters. Some just stretched out on park benches, blinking lazily in the sun.

The defectors were reluctant to talk politics.

Few defectors are ready to say what they expect in the future.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Fashion editors attending the New York showings have their own little enclave in New York. In the upper 50's bounded by Central Park, Fifth and Park Avenues, which with 200 of them here begins to resemble Seventh and Main.

There have been changes in New York since last summer. The new General Motors building rising on the site of the old Savoy Plaza isn't finished but you can look through the boarding windows to see the sunken plaza in front of it taking shape.

There's something new in the Plaza's plaza, too. Between the neo-classic fountain with its goddess with the grapes and dolphins, and the statue of Tecumseh Sherman with his horse being led by a palm-bearing figure of Victory, there is the "sculpture of the month" on loan to the city. This month it's an iron abstraction painted bright blue and called "Three Arches" by Herbert Ferber.

At the Pierre, the famous hanging "birdcage" had disappeared and the refounda walls are being painted with pillars and larger than life-size frolicking figures, which nobody seemed to approve of much sidewalk outside the entrance, which everybody does approve.

When Sears entertained at dinner at the Persian Room, Eartha Kitt presented a program designed more to please the Sears representatives than the lady fashion editors. Some were highly critical because of her actions at Mrs. Johnson's luncheon; some were inclined to be sympathetic because of hearing her tell of her early life on television.

They were interested by the way she used her whole body when she sang, like a prowling panther with the muscles rippling, but Eartha and the lady editors weren't really communicating. Not so with the party which followed at Plaza Nine where the Julius Monk production "Four in Hand" delighted everybody with its happy parodies of present foibles.

And the fashions? Well, those you can see for yourself when I get myself and the pictures home.

Society visits N. J. capitol

Sparkling skies, congenial company, an air conditioned bus, significant historical landmarks and a Smorgasbord luncheon of some 60 delectable items, set the mood for a most enjoyable summer tour by 32 members of the Monroe County Historical Society, on Saturday, June 22.

Journeying to Trenton, N.J., on a pilgrimage arranged by Society President, Horace G. Walters, the group visited the Old Barracks Building, State Museum and William Trent House.

The Barracks, a handsome fieldstone structure, built in 1758, during the French and Indian War to prevent forcible billeting of British soldiers on private householders, was one of several erected for the purpose. The one preserved through the efforts of the Captain Jonathan Oliphant Chapter of the D.A.R. Restoration, completed in 1917, has made the Old Barracks a focal point for visitors from all over the world.

Noteworthy exhibits include furniture, silver and china of the colonial and federal periods, mementos of George Washington, a collection of firearms including a blunderbuss, early muskets and rifles. Diaramas illustrate both the Battle of Trenton and the interior appearance of the Barracks as it appeared two centuries ago.

New Jersey State Museum, housing an outstanding collection of exhibits displays an art exhibition, gallery of natural history, a comprehensive exhibit of marine animals from the Atlantic Ocean, a hall of natural sciences containing exhibits on the structure of the earth; a planetarium gallery with specimens and photographs of meteors and meteorites; diaramas of astronomical instruments representing steps in man's ability to penetrate space, were some of the fascinating facets within the building.

Trent House, built by William Trent, from whom the city of Trenton derives its name, was erected in 1711 on a plot within 800 acres of land. Changing hands many times in subsequent years, Trent House ultimately was decided to the city through the generosity of the late Edward Stokes, with the stipulation that it be restored to its original state and preserved as an historic house museum.

Furnishings of the period of William and Mary and of Queen Ann have been assembled under the guidance of antiquarian John Adams Christoffel, Westover, Md., to approximate those of an inventory made in 1726 to settle Trent's estate.

This notable collection was made possible through generous gifts and loans.

The Garden Club of Trenton has made distinguished plantings fashioned by references to the Trent garden.

The 2:00 p.m. Smorgasbord, topped with king and queen sized helpings of strawberry shortcake produced a mellow mood for the return journey to the Poconos—and a "let's do it all over again" attitude with suggestions for an overnight tour of New York's historic Hudson Valley or an over-the-shoulder glimpse of Rip Van Winkle land.

Local Moose return from convention

EAST STROUDSBURG — Delegates from the local chapter and lodge of the Moose returned recently from the international conventions which were held at Mooshearts, Ill. and Chicago, June 14 to June 21.

The goal for the coming year, they learned, is to work for new equipment for Mooshearts and to build up Baby Village. Last year, the goal was a new hospital at Mooshearts, Fla.

Clue to how body fights cancer is found in blood's white cells

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — A long-sought clue to how the body recognizes and fights invaders — with potential value in the field of cancer and organ transplants — has been found in research at the City of Hope Medical Center.

Dr. Riojun Kinoshita, director emeritus of experimental pathology at the center, found the clue in working with macrophages, a type of white cell in the blood stream.

"We have learned that macrophages trap and analyze disease-causing material invading the body, then send instructions to another type of white cells, the lymphocytes, to multiply and make antibodies specifically designed to destroy the invader," Kinoshita says.

"We now think it may be possible to precondition macrophages to help us in at least two ways. First, we might train time to recognize at least some types of cancer as foreign material, so that lymphocytes would make antibodies to destroy cancer cells. Second, we might also train macrophages not to react to transplanted organs such as hearts and kidneys, in other words, to inhibit the production of antibodies naturally, without the use of radiation or drugs."

Kinoshita, credited with being among the first to show that some industrial materials cause cancer in animals, reported his macrophage work in technical papers recently and then elaborated in an interview.

"Science has wondered for a long time just how our bodies can produce disease-fighting antibodies against such a wide range of foreign materials, or antigens," he said.

"Various researchers have shown that antibodies, which neutralize invading germs, are produced by lymphocytes, but we did not know how lymphocytes were instructed to turn out specific antibodies against specific antigens."

Cindy Gudger of Irvington, N.Y., was one of the 210 young people who participated in the National Red Cross Aquatic School at Camp Indian Trail. Cindy points to a placard symbolizing the school.

A unique emergency first aid feature was instruction on the care, treatment and handling of automobile accident victims. Ira Koreman of New York City carefully braces the head of Laura Covell of Floral Park, L.I. while Rose Anne White of Lancaster adjusts a chest strap to keep the back brace firm.

Anthony Skane, Red Cross instructor for this water safety accident case class, points out how to handle an injury sustained by Bob Lenseth of Lancaster County. The mock accident showed students how to rescue an injured man from the water and what first aid treatment should be given.

National Red Cross Aquatic School held near Milford

MILFORD — More than 200 young people from throughout the United States including two from Canada and England - participated in the National American Red Cross Aquatic School which was held at Camp Indian Trail near this Pike County Community.

The Red Cross is not only an international organization, but the school proved that it is also an international symbol of understanding and education designed to help man aid his fellow man.

The National Aquatic School, which ended Sunday, included comprehensive courses in Red Cross first aid in boating, automobile accidents, in addition to teaching young people how to handle a sail boat, canoe and what safety features must be known in their operation.

Young age

Young people from 17 years on up, generally into the early 19-20's, participated in the school.

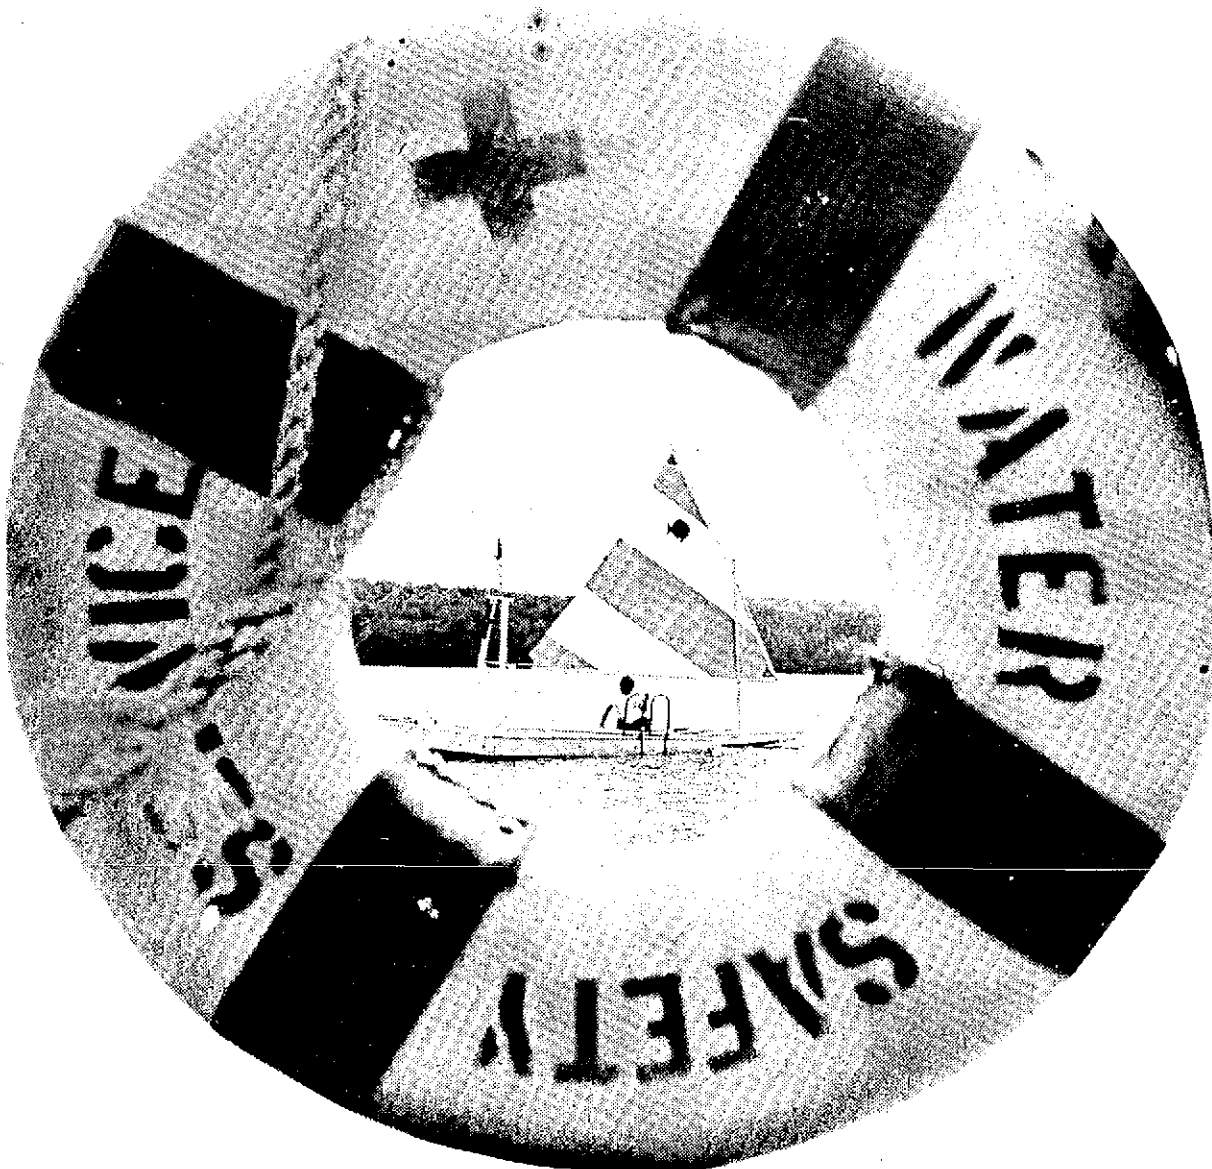

There was one exception. Retired Lt. Col. Robert E. O'Brien, a political science instructor at Penn State University.

The short, thin 63-year-old Army officer, clad in sneakers, blue-jeans and a colored cotton shirt, sat in the soft green grass along the shores of the Camp Indian Trail lake with a paper, clutched in his hands. He was taking a quiz on a Red Cross course he had taken.

The man enrolled in the school because "the element of safety was brought to my attention by my grandchildren so I learned the Red Cross and YMCA safety skills and qualifications," he said.

Margaret Ann Harafin from Shalford Surrey, England and Alice Monty from Montreal, Canada, were among the throng of young people who came to learn so that they could help others learn.

Irving Mohr, assistant director of the school, explained that the various instructors were donating their time to teach the more than 200 people the safety skills and first aid knowledge provided by the Red Cross.

Most of the persons at the camp, Mohr pointed out, were sent by Red Cross Chapters who provided scholarships. Others came on their own.

Starting date

The school began on June 13, but Mohr admitted that inclement weather dampened some of the activities.

The program at the camp was primarily concentrated on safety which provided the basis for developing leadership in courses of the Red Cross safety services.

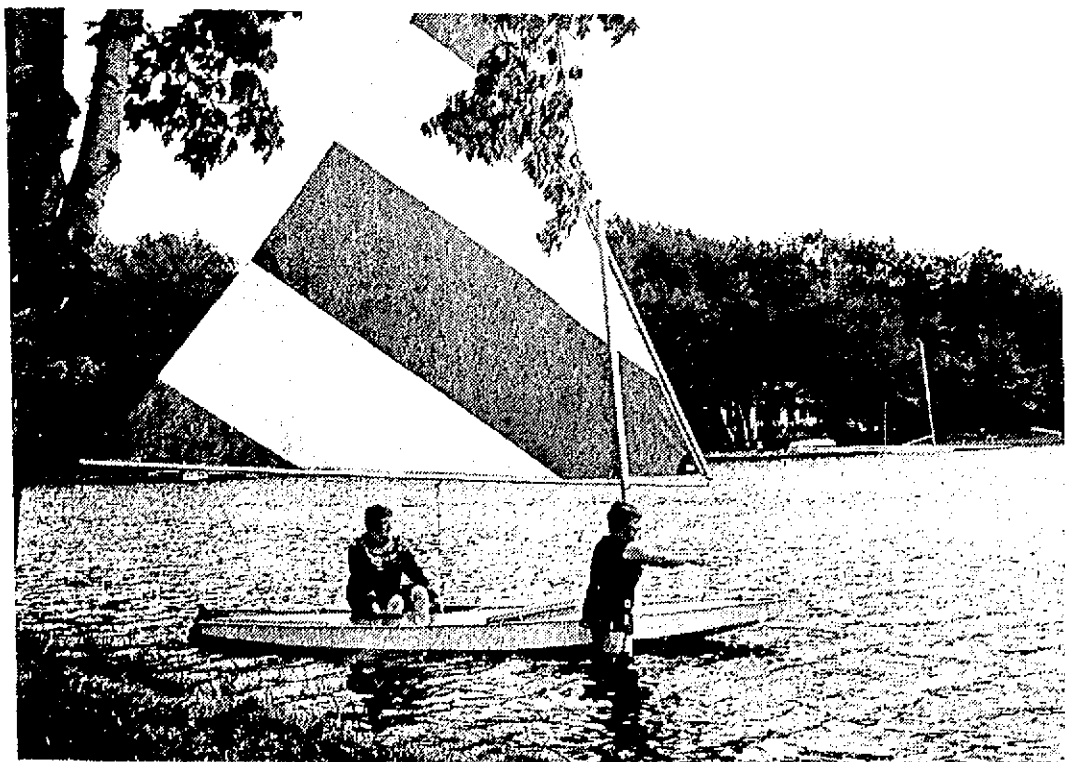

The camp day was filled with activity pertaining to Red Cross training. During the morning, the students attended classes in safety and in the afternoon moved out into the field where they were taught the safety of aquatics, sailing and canoeing.

There was some element of fun involved, such as taking the sail boats out on the large lake, but the instructors made sure that the students knew how to operate the sail boat and had their life preserver on so that they could enjoy their fun rather than have it cut short by a tragedy.

Summer recreation on a lake is designed for fun, but when the fun isn't framed with the knowledge of Red Cross water safety, it can be a disaster.

This girl prepares for an afternoon of sailing, but is confident of her safety after having taken a Red Cross safety course in boating.

Two foreign girls prepare to take the sail boat on the lake after a course on boating safety. From left are Alice Monty of Montreal, Canada and Margaret Jane Harafin of Shalford Surrey, England.

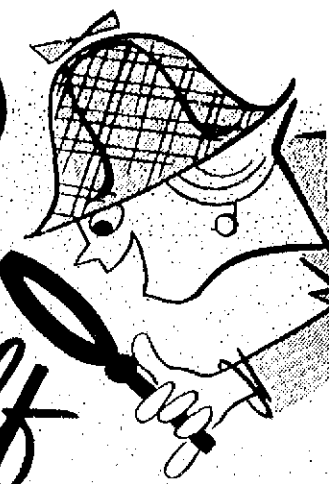

The National Aquatic School wasn't all work and no play. Here, Malendoe Felghtner of Greensburg, Pa. relaxes along the lake front while sail boats in the background were taken advantage of during the slight breeze.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

North dealer.

♠ 8 3 3 2	♥ A 2	♠ K Q 5	♥ K 8 6 5
♦ A 2	♣ A 7 4 3	♦ K J 2	♣ 7 5 4
♠ J 10 9 4	♥ J 10 3	♠ A K J 8 5	♥ J 10 3
♦ A K J 8 5	♣ A K J 8 5

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

Opening lead — four of hearts.

This deal occurred during the 1962 European championships in the match between Great Britain and France.

When the British held the North-South cards, they arrived at four spades on the bidding shown. It would seem difficult, if not impossible, to avoid the loss of three trump tricks and a heart, but declarer (Peter Swinerton-Dyer, playing with Ken Barbour) managed the affair nicely.

He won the heart lead in dummy with the ace, cashed the seven and dummy over with the jack. West ruffed with the seven and dummy over-ruffed with the eight. Declarer then ruffed a diamond and led another club.

West ruffed with the ace (best defense as dummy and East discarded hearts, and returned a diamond which declarer trumped. With seven tricks played, this was now the position:

NORTH		EAST
♠ 8 3 2	♥ A 2	♠ K Q 5	♥ K 8 6 5
♦ A 2	♣ A 7 4 3	♦ K J 2	♣ 7 5 4
♠ J 10 9 4	♥ J 10 3	♠ A K J 8 5	♥ J 10 3
♦ A K J 8 5	♣ A K J 8 5

Declarer led a heart, ruffing low in dummy, cashed the ace of diamonds which caught East's king as South discarded a heart, and continued with the queen of diamonds.

It would not have helped East to ruff low, and in fact he ruffed with the queen, but he was then at the end of his rope. He could score one more trick, but South was bound to make the contract.

You would think that this delicate four spade contract, neither easy to bid nor easy to make, would have resulted in a handsome gain for the British team, but at the second table the French North-South pair duplicated the outcome and the hand was an exact tie.

Events recall airlift

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A two-engine C47 cargo plane lumbered down the runway at Wiesbaden Air Base 20 years ago and the biggest air transport operation to date was under way—the Berlin Airlift.

West Berlin, the city that airlift pilots saved for the West, and West Germany, the country they flew from, showed every where the signs of wartime ruin and postwar shortage. Only a pilot of rare vision would have seen below him the seeds of wealth and influence evident in West Germany today.

And none of those who risked their lives in the airlift could have imagined that the United States would be condemned in the streets of West Berlin 20 years later by angry young students because of a war in far-off Asia. The students now clash with police in protest against the political and social system that the airlift made possible.

By the time the 15-month airlift was over, American and British planes had carried 2,325,509 tons of supplies to West Berlin to break a Soviet stranglehold on land routes to the city.

It dramatized allied determination to block Communist designs to squeeze the West out of Berlin. It also set the framework in which the country lives today. The Berlin blockade of 1948-49 was the last serious Soviet move against German territory assigned to the West after World War II.

By coincidence, another event that June 20 years ago was also a major factor in shaping West Germany. This was a bold decree for currency reform, devised by Ludwig Erhard and issued June 20, 1948, six days before the airlift began.

Against the misgivings of allied planners and many Germans, Erhard dropped price controls and rationing, swept away worthless and inflated reichsmarks and created the new deutschemark to work in a free economy.

Scrambling to earn the new money, German business and industry revived. An advance in prices was reversed and in less than 10 years people were talking about the German economic miracle.

The country existed little more than 20 years ago on a barter economy in which cigarettes were a chief item of exchange. Today it has accumulated $6.5 billion in gold and foreign currency. It has refinanced prewar debts of $1.2 billion, paid back Marshall Plan aid of $3.3 billion, and granted $9 billion in aid to other countries. Last year the gross national product was $120.9 billion.

Outward evidences of prosperity are the sleek office buildings, the busy industrial plants and factories, new and efficient replacements of those destroyed by war. More and more Germans own homes with gardens. The backyard swimming pool business is booming even though summers are not notably hot.

The woman's eye for fashion has been raised from the serviceable shoes and sturdy clothes of 20 years ago to more striking styles of Paris, Rome and London. Interest in her appearance has trimmed the modern German woman below the measurements of a generation ago, producing a crop of slender blonde beauties.

The economy has now matured to the point of withstanding its first recession. A boom of nearly two decades slowed down last year. Production, which had been growing by 7 per cent or more a year, increased by less than one per cent. For the first time in 20 years, total wage and salary payments declined, a jarring blow to a country that had seen them climb by an average of nearly 10 per cent in the previous six years.

A combination of easier credit and limited government pump-priming has eased the downturn and businessmen venture to be optimistic again.

Police chief won't sell kids BB guns

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief J. C. Goodman Jr., who smashed three BB guns during a police department auction, says, "I think in the future we just won't put them up for sale."

Goodman intervened Saturday when a BB rifle was about to be sold to a youngster. He marked the three BB guns which were up for auction as "No Sale" items and smashed them on the ground.

"I heard a little cheer go up from the crowd when I did it," the chief said.

OEO denies arming militant Negro street gang

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Office of Economic Opportunity said Sunday it has no knowledge of arms stockpiling by a Chicago street gang which it was trying to reclaim for society with a $927,000 grant to teach its members simple job skills.

In a prepared statement answering this and other charges aired before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee last week, OEO Director Bertrand Harding asserted senators may have been eager to level sensational criticism at the program, although he conceded the project may have failed.

"The apparent eagerness of some to accept the uncorroborated statements of a Chicago hoodlum, who was never a participant in the program, raises questions about their own credibility," said the statement.

At a committee session Friday, George Rose, a former warlord of the "Blackstone Rangers," testified that gang leaders considered the federal grant as a means of getting "some easy money" to mold the Rangers into an even more powerful criminal organization.

Rose said the Rev. John Fry, identified as the pastor of first Presbyterian Church on the city's South Side, allowed the gang to use his church to hold marijuana parties and store arms.

Fry denied this. Rose said the arms, kept in a tunnel under the church, included sawed-off shotguns, carbines and rifles with sniper scopes. Some of the federal money was used to buy arms and put up bail bond for jailed members, he added.

Harding said Chicago police met daily with the local agency administering the program, the Woodlawn Organization, and were close to it from the start.

"At no time have the police reported to the OEO finding arsenals of weapons as a result of this project," Harding said, adding that OEO on-site monitors also never disclosed evidence of weapons caches.

Harding denied also the testimony of a senate investigator, John J. Walsh, that a University of Chicago professor received $63,947 to evaluate the high-risk federal training program but had never made his report.

Harding's statement said a report was given early in the year on "progress in data collections, research design and survey formats, and a written report was issued in June and provided to the subcommittee. He added a final report is expected in October.

Double image during wedding

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nobody would have blamed Annie Puhalla if she'd been a bit confused at her wedding ceremony.

Officiating at her marriage to Lawrence Puhalla, 26, Saturday was his twin brother, the Rev. Joseph Puhalla, who was celebrating his first Nuptial Mass.

Harding confirmed that the government financed a $5,000 "picnic" for the Rangers but said this was done at the request of police. He said the OEO authorized a special outing on "Bad Billiken Day," a tradition at one for fighting among Chicago gangs.

The outing, said Harding, was used to brief the youths on the project and how they could become a part of it.

Sen. John J. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the subcommittee, charged that the OEO allowed the Rangers and another gang, the East Side Disciples, to take charge of the program "to buy peace on the streets of Chicago's South Side."

Harding said it was the intent of the program to allow fullest participation by gang members themselves "to test whether the mechanisms of the gang structures could assist in shifting attitudes toward productive adult

citizenship."

Walsh had testified that gang members with fourth- or fifth-grade educations were serving as instructors for those with second- and third-grade schooling.

He said also that the 499 youths recruited for basic education and job training in a program goal of reaching 800, and some 254 dropped out, 83 were placed in jobs and 30 of these later quit. About 160 were in the program when it was shut down in May.

"We at OEO believe it imperative that some means be developed to reclaim these poor, hard-core youth," said Harding.

"Traditional police tactics have failed. Traditional manpower programs have failed. Churches, schools and other social institutions have failed. It is possible that our experiment has failed as well."

Walsh had testified that gang members with fourth- or fifth-grade educations were serving as instructors for those with second- and third-grade schooling.

He said also that the 499 youths recruited for basic education and job training in a program goal of reaching 800, and some 254 dropped out, 83 were placed in jobs and 30 of these later quit. About 160 were in the program when it was shut down in May.

Festival to begin Friday

MOUNTAINHOME — The premiere season of the Pocono Music Festival will open under the "big top" at Onawa Lodge, Mountainhome, with a recital by the world-renowned Curtis String Quartet at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The recital will be one of 28 events to be presented by the festival, affiliated with Mid Atlantic Music and Arts Center, music camp also located at Onawa Lodge.

Members of the quartet are Jascha Brodsky, violin; Geoffrey Michaels, violin; Orlando Cole, cello; and Max Aronoff, viola. The ensemble will present five additional recitals during the festival's season, which runs through August 4.

The Curtis group has appeared throughout the United States, including appearances at the White House, and in many foreign countries. Its members are appearing at the center in a dual capacity—as performers and teachers.

The virtuosic instrumentalists will perform Haydn's Quartet Opus 74, No. 3; Turina's Oration del Torero, and Schubert's two-cello quintet. Cellist David Cole, 22-year-old son of David Cole, will be collaborating artist in the quintet.

The second event of the festival's opening week will be a concert by the Festival Symphony Orchestra of 80 under the baton of Louis Vyrer at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, June 29.

At 8:30 p.m., Sunday, there will be a concert by the Festival Band and Chorus, under the direction of Douglas Danfelt, Professor of music at East Stroudsburg State College. Danfelt has been director of the New York National Guard Band and the Gettysburg College Band.

The Maria Alba Spanish dancers will bring Iberian excitement to the blue and white tent Wednesday, July 3, at 8:30 p.m. The fiery troupe has won public and critical acclaim wherever it has appeared—from Madrid to Los Angeles.

Ronald Rogers, popular interpreter of song from hit Broadway shows, will appear at 8:30 p.m. July 4. He has toured the United States with Paul Lavalle and the Band of America, and has been guest soloist with many major symphony orchestras.

March of Truth Crusade

'Windy' tent called cathedral

By Elliot Brown
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — It could be a gigantic sea turtle, left stranded on the grass next to the Giant Market as the result of an unnoticed tidal wave.

Or, perhaps, it's a green hippopotamus, sunning itself on the rocky soil prior to crawling back into Brodheads Creek.

Then again, it might be a dinosaur, who wandered in somehow from the untracked wilderness of Phillips St.

What it really is, though, is a "cloud cathedral," a dome of coated nylon, supported solely through the efforts of its faithful fans, the air conditioning kind that is.

In other words, walking into this "air structure" is something like finding out what life is like inside a tremendous balloon.

The "cloud cathedral" is the home of the March of Truth Crusade, which on Sunday is scheduled to march into Stroudsburg for three weeks.

B. Paul Gernet, pastor of the local Seventh-day Adventist Church, was on the scene, helping erect the tent in the bright sunlight of the hot Tuesday afternoon. He is the co-ordinator of the March of Truth Crusade.

Pastor Gernet, despite the heat, was cheerful as he went about the tough job of anchoring the tent-like edifice in the rocky soil.

"Our evangelical series is here to present the great truths of the Bible," he said, stepping back and observing the structure, which seemed to breathe in and out as the wind blew. "Here in the natural beauty of this area, through the use of this remarkable invention, we will study God's holy word."

The pastor pulled open a flap, and proudly stepped into the "cathedral." Walking inside is really an amazing experience. How anything that looks so small on the outside can be so big on the inside is remarkable.

"Four men can stand on top of this when it's all the way up," the pastor said, "when it's up, it'll be even tighter."

The structure is about 85 feet long, 45 feet across, and 30 feet high. The dirty green on the outside makes a rather pleasing green pattern when the sun shines through. The place will hold about 300 people, according to Pastor Gernet. It's fireproof, and in case of power failure, it takes 10-15 minutes to deflate.

Driebe new chairman of bridge commission

MORRISVILLE — Edward K. Driebe, 510 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, became the first man to serve two terms as chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission when he was named to the post at the commission's meeting Tuesday.

Driebe, president Pocono

Produce in Stroudsburg, was first named to the commission in 1963 by Gov. William W. Scranton. He is one of ten members, five from Pennsylvania and five from New Jersey.

Speaking on future plans for the commission, Driebe said it would depend upon whether legislation is passed in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives pertaining to Senate Bill 1512. The Senate bill includes the building of two free bridges, Interstate 1-78 at Easton-Phillipsburg and another at Burlington-Bristol. Tuesday, the House deferred action on the bill.

"What happens here will determine the course the bridge commission will take," Driebe said. "If they pass it, we will build the bridges, but the commission will not be in any position to borrow funds in order to build any other bridges."

Driebe stressed his feeling that "bridges should be either all free or all toll." He said, he was in favor of having them free, and added "it's unfair to have a free Interstate 78 at Easton-Phillipsburg and then ask local people to pay to cross at Route 22."

"It is an inequity which should not be permitted to take place," he added. "To permit tolls in Delaware Water Gap until 1990 is not fair to the local people."

Driebe, 52, has been a resident of Stroudsburg since 1940. He is married to the former Mary R. Pusateri and the couple has two children and one grandchild.

He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Shawnee Country Club, the Elks, the Eastern Frozen Food Association, and Les Amis D'escoffier Society. A past-president of the Lion's, he is a member of the Stroudsburg Planning Commission.

He served as chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission from May 21, 1964, to May 20, 1965, and was elected vice-chairman May 23, 1967.

Driebe opposes state bridge bill

HARRISBURG — Edward K. Driebe of Stroudsburg, vice chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission, has called for the exclusion of future state highway secretaries from the tri-state commission.

Driebe said in Harrisburg Tuesday he will ask the Pennsylvania legislature to revise legislation requiring membership of the secretary. The reason for this, Driebe said, is that inclusion of the secretary leaves the commission open to external pressures.

Driebe said he was "opposed to pressure put on the secretary by the federal administrator of roads." He said the liaison between the road and bridge agencies was "a good idea until the interstate highway system was begun."

Stressing that his move was not "a personal attack" on Robert C. Bartlett, secretary of highways, Driebe said the legislation "would only apply to any future secretaries."

Driebe's action stemmed from the controversy over "Memorandum of Agreement" which would require the bridge commission to change its compact to allow a free bridge to be built within ten miles of a toll bridge. He is opposed to the memorandum.

With it, Pennsylvania and New Jersey could allow the Interstate Route 78 bridge to be built within 2 1/2 miles of the Easton-Phillipsburg Toll Bridge in exchange for $60 million in federal aid to build the 1-78 bridge and the Interstate Route 95 bridge at Burlington-Bristol.

Driebe said he was in opposition to the way in which the matter had been handled. When Sen. Jeanette Reibman of Easton co-sponsored the resolution, which passed the State Senate two weeks ago, she said she had been told the 1-78 bridge's future hinged on the approval. Driebe said this was not the case.

He feels that there is not sufficient information to warrant legislative action on the memorandum, and says it should be rejected on this basis alone.

In January, commission chairman David J. Goldberg began formal negotiations about the memorandum with the federal Bureau of Roads. Goldberg, who is also New Jersey Commissioner of Transportation, reported in April that progress was being made.

He prepared the memorandum as a preliminary step to working out the final agreement which would include the two bridges in the interstate road system in exchange for $60 million in federal aid to build them.

At the May 23 meeting, the New Jersey delegation walked out, preventing the session from convening. One of the reasons for the walkout, at the time, was that the New Jersey delegation was not willing to vote for Driebe, who was to be elected chairman, because of his opposition to the agreement. Despite opposition from legislators in the Warren County area, the agreement was approved by the New Jersey legislature after a bitter fight.

Driebe is supported in his opposition to the memorandum by Bridge Commissioner James C. Skillman. Both claim that the situation left Bartlett "very vulnerable" to pressures from the federal government because he was both highway secretary and bridge commissioner.

This is not the first time the commission and the federal government have clashed. The commission went to court at one point over the past several years to win a permit to construct a bridge at New Hope.

Notices to be mailed

STROUDSBURG — Chief Assessor William Fetherman announced Tuesday that notices will be sent to county residents who have had their assessments changed August 20.

Fetherman said that the notices include those who have purchased or sold lots as well as assessment changes on existing properties.

He reminded persons receiving notices that if an appeal is intended the person must make his wish known in writing to the chief assessor's office on courthouse Square by Sept. 1, 1967.

He said that appeals will be heard throughout the month of September by the chief assessor and the county commissioners sitting as the Monroe County Board for the Revision and Assessment of Taxes.

A three-man citizen's panel to hear appeals was discontinued by the commissioners shortly after they took office in January.

Fetherman also noted that action is still pending on the possibility of a county-wide reassessment. He said the matter is still being studied by the commissioners.

Firm to sue for unpaid bill

STROUDSBURG — Neisner Brothers Inc., Rochester, N.Y., has filed suit in Monroe County Court seeking an alleged unpaid bill from a Portland couple.

Eastburg council awards storm sewer contracts

STROUDSBURG — Two contracts for storm sewer construction materials were awarded to Pocono Paving Materials Inc., Saylorsburg, Tuesday during an adjourned meeting of the East Stroudsburg Borough Council.

and $2.40 per foot for 15 inch. The company submitted the only bid for pipe.

For crushed aggregate per ton both Pocono Paving and Houdaille Construction Materials submitted identical bids of $1.90.

The contract was awarded to Pocono Paving when a motion to award the bid to Houdaille failed to get a second.

Also present for public inspection was a proposed Water Capital Improvement Fund budget totaling $54,169.

Principle expenditures for the water revenue fund budget were listed as salaries of officers and office help at $16,700; salaries and wages of personnel employed in purification and filtration at $15,700; and debt service interest at $13,975.

A total of $30,400 was listed as expenditures under general classification with $77,100 for total operations and maintenance.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Five local youths are among forty East Stroudsburg State College students who departed Tuesday for a six-week tour of Europe.

The group, accompanied by two faculty members, left Kennedy Airport at 11 p.m. on an Air France jet for Ireland.

Among those participating are Charlene Buser, 613 Bryant St., Stroudsburg; Phyllis A. Kistler, 733 Clermont Ave., Stroudsburg; Mary L. Montgomery of Tannersville; Ronald W. Shepard of Dingmans Ferry; and Ingrid M. Wilhelm of Stroudsburg RD 3.

Countries in which the students will visit and study include England, France, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Austria, Italy, Yugoslavia, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal.

William McFadden, associate professor of History at ESSC will be guiding his third consecutive summer study tour and co-directing will be Mr. Spas T. Raikin, also an associate professor in the Social Science Department.

As a travel-study tour in which the student can earn undergraduate or graduate credit, certain academic obligations are required.

McFadden said that prior to their departure, a three-day orientation was held in which different ESSC professors lecture to the group on certain aspects of nations that they will visit. This prepares them to assimilate what they will learn in Europe.

USAC directors refuse to ban turbines

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—The United States Auto Club board of directors Tuesday turned down a recommendation to ban turbine-powered cars from championship races.

It formed a special committee "to review the whole spectrum of equivalency formulas for 1969."

The rules committee had recommended that the turbines be banned from USAC events. Strong support for the proposal came from a number of piston-driven car owners.

But the USAC board turned down the proposal. The board also resolved that after Jan. 1, 1970, all USAC cars will be limited to two driving wheels and that turbines eligible for championship races be of "automotive type."

The special committee was directed to define "automotive turbine" and "stock block engine" by the July meeting of the USAC board. A deadline of September was set for the equivalency study, although the board said it would prefer to have it by July.

Turbines owned by Andy

Granatelli are four-wheel drive and used airplane brakes.

In both of the last two Indianapolis 500-mile races, Granatelli turbines came within miles of winning the Memorial Day classic, only to falter because of minor mechanical woes while leading the rest of the field.

"In my opinion, the board made a very sound and fair decision in rejecting the rules committee recommendation and appointing a subcommittee to review the whole spectrum of equivalency formulas for 1969,"

Thomas Binford, USAC president and board chairman, said.

"This, of course, means that the turbine and other unique forms of power are still eligible to compete with the more traditional piston engines," Binford said. "This review stems primarily from the board's concern with the rapidly increasing speed accomplished by at least two of the equivalency formulas which indicates that they are no longer equivalent."

"The board is hopeful that a reduction can be recommended," Binford said.

If a reduction is effected for turbines, it would be the second in as many years. After Parnelli Jones drove to near-victory in the 1967 Indianapolis race, USAC reduced turbine power by nearly one-third.

Binford said the decision regarding four-wheel drive "reflects the board's desire to bring turbine-powered cars into the mainstream of automotive development as opposed to industrial aircraft development."

"When this formula becomes effective, the turbines will no longer require a four-wheel drive which is extremely expensive and presently is not being used in passenger cars and has little chance of being used in the near future," Binford said.

He was alluding to the theory that racing is a proving ground for passenger cars.

Named to the special committee were Charles Brockman, chairman; Henry Banks, USAC director of competition; chief mechanic Herb Porter, and driver Roger McCluskey.

Seaver blanks Reds on 5 hits

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Cleon Jones homered in the sixth inning and singled during a three-run seventh inning Tuesday night as the New York Mets blanked the Cincinnati Reds 4-0 behind Tom Seaver's five-hit pitching.

Indians collect 15 hits

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Duke Sims had three hits and drove in two runs Tuesday night to lead a 15-hit attack that enabled the Cleveland Indians to defeat the Washington Senators 6-1 and give Sonny Siebert his seventh victory of the season.

Sims climaxed a three-run first-inning assault on Joe Coleman with a run-scoring single and also singled home a run in the eighth inning when the Indians scored their final two runs.

Siebert pitched a no-hitter for 6 2/3 innings before Ron Hansen doubled to center field and scored on a single by Del Unser. Ken McMullen followed with a single but Ed Stroud lined out to end the rally.

The Indians' three-run rally in the first inning started with singles by Larry Brown and Jimmie Hall. Lee Maye doubled to put the Indians ahead 1-0 and Hall scored the second run of the inning on a passed ball by Bill Bryan. Sims' first single of the game drove in Maye with the third run of the frame.

Siebert singled home the Indians' fourth run in the fourth inning and they added two more in the eighth on singles by Russ Snyder and Tommy Harper, a sacrifice and a wild pitch and Sims' third hit.

Siebert was relieved at the start of the eighth inning by Stan Williams, who allowed one hit in the last two frames to complete the combined four-hitter.

The shutout was the 11th of the season for the New York staff, matching its total for the 1967 season.

The Mets added three more runs off George Culver in the seventh on a walk to Al Weis, Bud Harrelson's triple and singles by Don Bosch, Jones and J. C. Martin.

Varsity S extends win skein Houston 6-3 under Walker

NAZARETH — The Varsity S extended its winning streak in the Northampton County American Legion to four Tuesday night with a 1-0 decision over Nazareth.

Stroudsburg (6-2) managed only three hits off loser Bob Engler but took advantage of two errors for the game's only run.

With two out Mark Williams reached third on a three-base error by the Nazareth right fielder, George Kutidis' grounder was then bunted by the shortstop allowing Williams to score.

Doug Miller, who allowed only four hits and fanned 10, was in trouble in the third when Engler doubled and George singled with no outs to put runners on second and third.

But Miller got the first out on a short fly to center and got the next two hitters to hit back to third baseman Dave Shook.

Stroudsburg entertains Lehigh Township Thursday night.

Williams equals KO mark of Joe

HOUSTON (UPI) — Aging Cleveland Williams tied Joe Louis' heavyweight knockout record of 54 Tuesday night by stopping Canadian Leslie Borden at 2:35 of the first round.

Williams, 36, thus recorded his third straight first-round knockout on a comeback that followed his brutal beating at the hands of deposed champion Cassius Clay two years ago.

Williams, now with a record of 68 wins, six losses and a draw, floored the 198-pound Borden three times before the fight was stopped. All three knockdowns came off flashing left hooks.

Cuellar, finding his form after suffering early season arm trouble, raised his record to 5-3, the best on the Astro staff and pitched his sixth complete game in eight starts.

Staub, hitting in his 10th straight game and raising his average to .323 drove in the tying run and scored the winning run when the Astros turned a 2-1 deficit into a 4-2 lead with a three-run rally in the sixth.

Hector Torres, led off the sixth with his first major league triple and scored on Staub's single to right. After the next two men were retired, Doug Rader singled to right, sending Staub to third.

Bob Watson lined sharply to shortstop but Don Kessinger slipped when he reached for it and it went over his head for a hit. Staub scored on the play to snap a 2-2 tie.

Rader raced to third on the play and scored on a wild pitch by reliever Jack Lamabe, who was called in after Watson's hit. Lamabe replaced Joe Niekro, who is now 6-6.

The Astros scored their first run in the first when Dick Simpson walked, took second on a groundout and scored when Kessinger threw wildly to first on Jim Wynn's grounder.

The Cub scored in the fourth on Billy Williams' double and Jim Hickman's single and again in the fifth on a double by Adolfo Phillips, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly by Glenn Beckert.

It was the Astros' third straight win and the club is 6-3 under Harry Walker.

Ron Reed checks Phillies

ATLANTA (UPI)—Towering rookie Ron Reed picked up his eighth victory in 11 decisions Tuesday night when he pitched the Atlanta Braves to a 6-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Reed, a six-foot, six-inch former pro basketball player, gave up only four hits and the only time the Phillies got a runner past first base was in the seventh inning when Tony Taylor ruined his bid for a shutout by hitting his first home run of the season.

Reed struck out 10 and walked none.

Aside from Taylor's homer, the batter who gave Reed the most trouble was Tony Gonzalez, who had a pair of singles and was hit by a pitch.

The Braves put together four straight singles and a sacrifice fly for three runs off Larry Jackson in the first inning and came up with three more in the third when the same four men had back to back singles again and they added a fifth single after one out.

In the first inning Sonny Jackson singled with one out, stole second and scored on Hank Aaron's single. Aaron then stole second and scored on Joe Torre's single. Torre went to third on Tito Francona's single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Deron Johnson.

Wills extends hit streak to 23 games

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Maury Wills, who stretched his hitting streak to 23 games with a single in the fifth inning, tripled and scored the game-winning run on Gene Alley's single in the eighth Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Rob Veale received credit for his fifth victory although he needed relief help from Doc Ellis and Luke Walker in the eighth when the Cardinals scored both their runs. Walker, taking over with the bases filled and none out, struck out Tim McCarver and got Ed Spiezio to hit into a double play ending the rally.

The Pirates, who dealt Steve Carlton his third loss, took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when Alley walked, went to third on Roberto Clemente's single and scored as Manny Mota hit into a force play.

Veale was in constant trouble before the eighth but pitched his way out of trouble in the first, second, fifth and seventh innings.

Frank Robinson bats in three runs

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a homer, double and a single and Wally Bunker pitched a five-hitter Tuesday night as the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The win was Bunker's first since being recalled from the Orioles' Rochester farm club last week. Although he had a 42-27 career record, it was only Bunker's third major league shutout in five years.

Robinson hit his third homer of the season, his first in Baltimore, with Bunker on a via a walk to give the Orioles a 2-0 lead in the third. He singled home another run when the Orioles knocked out loser Ray Culp with two more runs in the fifth and then added a double in the seventh when the Orioles scored two more runs.

Brooks Robinson also drove in a run with an infield hit in the fifth while singles by Boog

Herb FitzGibbon scores first major upset at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Herb FitzGibbon of Garden City, N.Y., the 15th ranked amateur in the United States, pulled off the first major upset of the Wimbledon tennis championships Tuesday when he defeated Yugoslavian professional Nikk Pilic.

FitzGibbon displayed all the strokes in the book to defeat Pilic, who reached the semi-finals last year, by a 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 5-2 score. Pilic, seeded 15th, thus became the first professional to be beaten in the first open Wimbledon ever staged.

It was generally a satisfactory day for the U.S. contingent. Pancho Gonzalez of Los Angeles and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, seeded eighth and ninth, also won, as did defending women's champion Billie Jean King of Long Beach Calif.

On the deficit side, Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., fell before Mrs. King 7-5, 6-4, while last year's beaten finalist, Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, defeated Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Fla., 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

Gonzalez, returning to the famed center court for the first time since 1949, made prime use of his booming serve and lightning volleys to whip Rathan Krishnan of India 6-2, 6-4, 6-3. Buchholz beat Australia's Alan Stone 6-4, 6-2, 10-12, 6-4.

For the second straight day, rain and high winds plagued the players and courts outside the stadium were not used.

FitzGibbon, whose only previous claim to fame was his second place finish in last year's Pan-American Games tennis competition and his share of the U.S. father and son doubles title, made an auspicious start in his second Wimbledon.

"It was in the third set I thought I could win," he said. "I was getting the range of his service and he was drawing a few doubles. I was not supposed to beat him, but if I did it would be a great win. If I lost it would have been no disgrace. It was a safe draw."

Pilic was stunned.

"I can't believe it," he said. "I just refuse to believe anything."

The duel was one between power hitters. Both had trouble adapting to the gusty wind, but the 28-year-old New Yorker settled after overcoming early nervousness.

FitzGibbon dropped his opening service—the only time he did in the match—to allow Pilic a 3-0 lead. Games went with service until the Yugoslav wrapped up the first set in the ninth game.

The hitting really started in the second set with both men holding service until the 12th when FitzGibbon, aided by a couple of double faults, got the decisive break.

In the third set FitzGibbon got the break for a 3-1 lead, while he had a 4-1 advantage in the fourth to put his stamp on the match. Each time he broke the Yugoslav with magnificent cross-court returns, then banged home his own service to maintain his advantage.

The Buchholz-Stone match was a patchy affair, the 10th seeded American serving fewer doubles than his opponent who was foot-faulted seven times. In the end Buchholz's great physical stamina proved the decisive factor. Both men dropped service several times, but neither seemed able to sustain the momentum gained from their breaks.

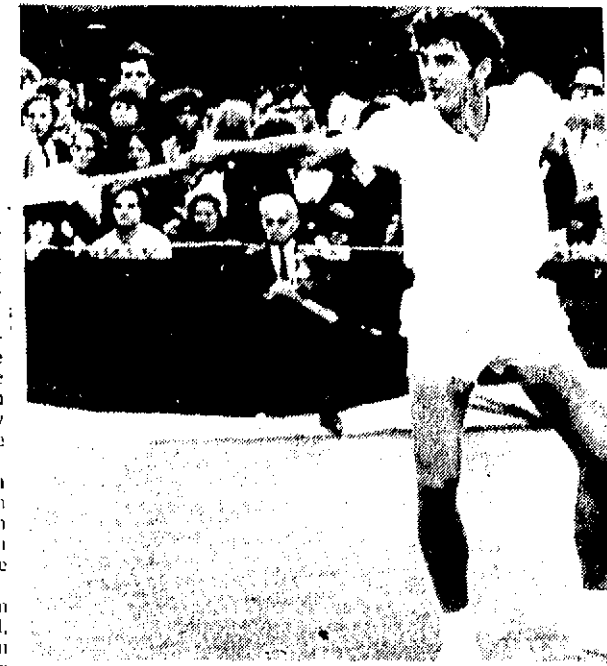

Gonzalez thrilled the gallery by displaying his full bag of tricks, which was too much for Krishnan to handle. But the Indian helped make it a great match with cunning cross-court volleys to the corners. In the end, however, it was simply a matter of power—and Pancho had it.

Other men's seeds to win Tuesday were Fred Stolle of Australia, three times a losing finalist here during his amateur days, who blasted his way to a 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 win over Jean-Claude Barclay of France, and Tom Okker of Holland, winner of the South African and Italian titles earlier this year, who dropped a set in disposing of Britain's Peter Curtis, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. King, seeking to win her third straight women's singles championship, was below par in beating Miss Bartkowicz, an up and coming player. But she had too much experience and power for the long-legged, pony-tailed teenager to cope with.

Miss Bartkowicz could not overcome the handicap of a soft second service, but managed a few gratifying moments with some strong baseline strokes that meant trouble for the bespectacled professional from Long Beach, Calif.

Mrs. Jones, Britain's only professional woman player, lost to Mrs. King for the title last year when both were amateurs.

Frazier's problem; who to meet next

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Frazier was a man with a problem Tuesday after successfully defending his five-state version of the world heavyweight championship with a second round technical knockout of Mexico's Manuel Ramos.

Frazier's problem was simply, "Who's next?"

Promoters at Madison Square Garden, where Frazier scored his impressive victory over the tall Mexican, are looking to match the hard-hitting Philadelphia with Jimmy Ellis, who holds the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight crown.

Angelo Dundee, who manages Ellis, seemed to have different plans.

Dundee said he is negotiating for a title fight with former world champion Floyd Patterson in Sweden, possibly in August. Dundee did make it clear, however, that if plans for the Ellis-Patterson fight should fall through, an Ellis-Frazier title showdown could become a reality.

Another possibility facing Frazier is Jerry Quarry, the Baltimore, Calif., strongbox who lost the WBA title to Frazier.

Quarry, a surprise runnerup in the tourney, has expressed a desire to meet Frazier and the unbeaten champion seems to prefer to meet him.

Another unheralded heavyweight, hard-hitting Boone Kirkman of Seattle, Wash., has also expressed interest in taking on Frazier. Kirkman has gone so far as to guarantee the Garden draw for the Ramos-Frazier fight, about $120,000.

Frazier was guaranteed $125,000 while Ramos collected about $30,000 for his 20 per cent of gate and ancillary rights.

Ramos, meanwhile, seems to have convinced the Garden management that he can draw despite his rather short two-round tenure in the ring. The hunking Mexican, who actually knocked Frazier with a wicked right to the forehead in the first round, has indicated a desire to meet anyone who stands in his way of a rematch with Frazier.

Garden promoters are expected to invite Ramos back in the fall, possibly in October, to meet one of three opponents, Oscar Bonavena or Lucien Martin, losers in the WBA tournament, or Buster Mathis.

Detroit's Bing to operate court camp in Pocono Mts.

POCONO PINES — Dave Bing, the scoring king in the National Basketball Association this season, and Howie Landis, a former Little All-American, will operate a basketball camp in the Pocono Mountains this year.

Bing and Landis purchased Trail Side Cottages, near Pocono Pines, and call the new venture, "Dave Bing's All Pro Basketball Camp." The deal for Trail Side Cottages was consummated in the offices of Monroe Security Bank and Trust Company, Stroudsburg.

The All Pro Basketball Camp will offer seven sessions, the first getting underway July 7-13. The student-teacher operation will continue through August 24.

Guest teachers will include Bill Bradley, the former Princeton All-American and present New York Knickerbocker star; Sam Jones, the Boston Celtics' top scorer; and Billy Cunningham, the Philadelphia 76ers' most promising young player.

Bing, Rookie of the Year in the NBA, broke all scoring records at Syracuse University before coming to the Detroit

Pistons and ripping the nets apart at a record pace.

Comparatively small (6-3), Bing has turned the NBA's big-man game back to the smaller player. In topping 1,600 points in his first season in the NBA, the 23-year-old Bing joined such greats as Wilt Chamberlain and Rick Barry in the high scoring department as a pro freshman.

Landis, an Eastern League all-pro for six years, is rated one of the top coaches in the business today. During his high school coaching career, Landis established a 32-win, 16-loss mark which guided his fives to two Class A undefeated seasons and placed in national tournaments at Kansas City.

Of late, Landis has recorded three national junior college championships in compiling a 121-59 won and loss record.

Ted's Tidbits

By TED WISMER
Sports Editor

Tony Romano is having a tough time getting a summer basketball league for older boys started because of a "simple" PIAA rule.

The PIAA has ruled that no more than two boys on a school's eligibility list may perform on the same team in the off-season.

Thus Romano is faced with the task of coming up with five high school graduates for every set of high school age players that sign up.

Summer leagues in the larger areas have no trouble filling rosters but in this area the rule could have a serious affect on the success of future basketball squads.

One area coach pointed to another part of the rule which is even more ridiculous. If Jim Smith is coaching at a basketball camp and he has his players in attendance when it comes time for his instructions, his players must go back to their cabins and miss the drill.

July 7 big day
Sunday, July 7 will be a big day for the followers of the West End Baseball Club of the Pocono Mountain League.

On that day the club will pay tribute to the late "Web" Shafer, when it dedicates a new pavilion in his honor. His widow, Ann Shafer, still carries on her duties as club secretary tirelessly and efficiently.

The following tribute was submitted by the club. It's title is "They don't make them like him anymore."

On Sunday, July 7, at the West End ball park.

A pavilion will be named after a guy with plenty of spark.

His name is "Web" Shafer. Known to quite a few,

As a ball player, manager, and a good friend, too.

There will be no big names to dedicate.

Just his friends and ball players will participate.

He'd have wanted this simple way.

A few solemn words and then a party real gay.

And Web on that Sunday you'll be closer for a while.

As the stories told about you bring a tear and a smile.

And till we see in that big ball park above.

We name this pavilion after you and we do it with love.

There is plenty to say about "Web," but one thing that's a score is simply, "They don't make them like him anymore."

Vikings sign Charlie West

ST. PAUL — MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Charlie West, a highly-ranked defensive back from University of Texas-El Paso, signed a 1968 contract with the Minnesota Vikings, the club announced today. He was Minnesota's second draft choice.

Originally named to the College All-Star squad, West entered professional baseball and was replaced on the team by Mike Freeman, the Vikings' fourth choice.

West played one month for the Cincinnati Reds' farm club at Tampa before leaving baseball with a disappointing batting average to sign with the Vikings.

"Now he feels his future is in football," said Minnesota General Manager Jim Finks. "He's an outstanding athlete and we're delighted to have him."

1st National routs Ronson

STROUDSBURG — First National unleashed a 13-hit attack Tuesday night to bury Ronson, 13-1 in the Stroudsburg Little League.

Jim Ace (3-4), Steve Kymur (3 for 3) and Ken Mann and Tom Dennis, each with 2 for 3 led the winners.

Mann hurled a three-hitter in besting Jim Kitchen. The game was the first in the second half for both teams.

Tonight the Big N takes on first half champion Wyckoff-Sears.

Joys, sobs coming in bunches in '68

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joys and sobs are coming to baseball in bunches this season.

It's the year of the streak—winning, losing, scoreless and home runs.

Winning streaks moved both the St. Louis Cardinals and Detroit Tigers to the head of the class and losing streaks led to the unhorsing of two managers.

Frank Howard of the Washington Senators knocked over a pair of homer records during one wild streak in May, Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers pitched a record 58 2-3 scoreless innings and the Chicago Cubs tied a record for futility by failing to score in 48 consecutive innings — none against Drysdale.

Some experts insist this fluctuating state is caused by dilution in the player pool with 20 major league teams operating on barely enough good talent for 16 clubs.

If that's true, wait'll next year when today's 20 become 24 with San Diego, Montreal, Seattle and Kansas City franchises to be stocked in expansion drafts.

The Cardinals, Tigers and Pittsburgh Pirates have piled up the longest winning streaks—nine each.

Detroit lost its opener, then won nine in a row and the rest of the league has been playing catch-up baseball ever since. The Cardinals strung together their nine in a row between May 30-June 6 and recently closed out a seven game streak for a lead that's comfortable though far from safe.

Pittsburgh won nine from June 13-20, just about in time to keep from falling out the bottom of the National League standings. The Pirates earlier had two losing streaks of five games, another of four.

The Phillies dropped manager Gene Mauch after losing streaks of six, four and five. Houston dropped Grady Hatton after losing strings of six, five, seven and six.

The Chicago White Sox opened the season with a 10-game losing streak, longest of the year so far, but escaped a spot in the record book. Washington (1904) and Detroit (1920) lost their first 13 to share the record.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Braves are the year's most consistent. Their longest winning streak is only three but their worst slide is only three games, too.

Remember when there was only one way to become a blonde?

The hard way. Which was also the messy way. And after you went to all that trouble, nobody would guarantee that the color you got was the color you wanted.

But what choice was there?

This was before hair tints were introduced. Before rinses overtook tints. And before shampoo-ins were in.

Some people think all this hair color competition is ridiculous. Limit the choice, they say. Maybe do away with all Butterscotch blondes. Or keep Butterscotch and eliminate Buttercup. Who decides?

Right now, you do. Because when you buy one hair color and not another, you're telling some manufacturer exactly what you like and dislike.

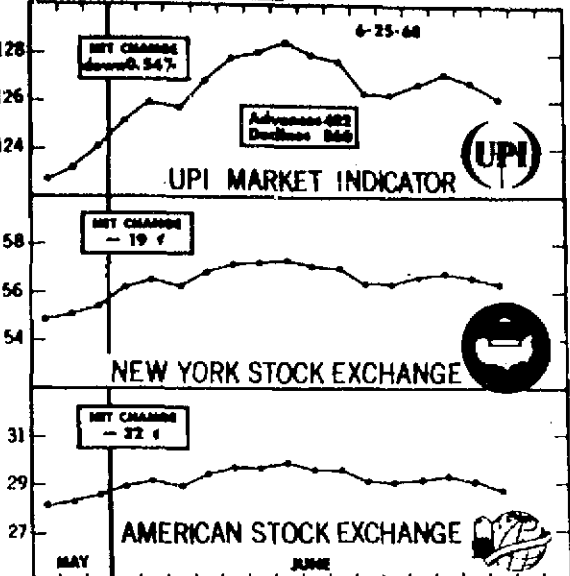

Without competition, what's the point in making things better for a lower price? Competition is healthy for everyone. You get a bigger choice. And a better choice. You can even choose to become a redhead if you don't believe blondes have more fun.

Be choosy.

You've got a right.

Market reluctantly takes loss

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices declined along a fairly broad front in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday but losses were modest in most cases, except for some high priced issues. The list moved in lower territory throughout the session but profit taking mounted rapidly late in the day and many stocks finished around their lowest levels of the day. Brokers said the lack of incentives rather than any disturbing economic or international news accounted for the rather lackluster trend of the list.

Analysts pointed out that much of the afternoon selling was probably cautious profit-taking in the face of Wednesday's market holiday. The closing is the third of several such shutdowns aimed at helping brokerage houses clear up the backlog of paperwork stemming from the heavy trading pace.

The Dow Jones industrial average eased 0.42 to 801.41 and the rail component slipped 2.12 to 262.67. The utility average snapped a seven-session winning streak, falling 0.77 to 133.50.

Of the 1,548 issues traded, 860 declined and 482 advanced, leaving 206 unchanged; 74 issues rose to new 1968 highs and 16 fell to new lows.

Volume expanded to 13,200,000 shares from the 13,320,000 shares traded on Monday.

Institutions seemed more active than in the past several sessions with 54 blocks of 10,000 shares or more recorded.

Commercial Credit was the most active stock, rising 4 1/2 to 57 1/2 on volume of 208,300 shares. Directors of Control Data agreed on a new and more attractive offer for the Strictly speaking, you may not yet be due for the benefits or gains you expect, but accuracy and clockwork precision will bring you big dividends soon.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

There will be more to this day than shows at first glance. Take people at their word; also be ready for unintentional errors. Reason out the "whys" of feelings, hunches, emotions. Be composed.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

You may have more to accomplish or finish than anticipated, but do not let anything stymie you and your enthusiasm for good things. Neither promise more than you can perform.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Mercury in fine aspect. But do not jump to conclusions or leap before you look THOROUGHLY. You could get ahead of yourself, vex close allies.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

Protect earnings, personal affairs, family interests. Intentions must be acted upon before returns can roll in.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)

Considering the fine planetary influences under which you are now governed, you should easily be able to produce top notch results, increase assets, reanimate ambitions.

November 24 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)

Note Sagittarius; your influences similar. Strive for laudable, reputable action, initiating fresh incentive in possible "dull" spots.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius)

Some hair-splitting and cynicism may be encountered. Planetary aspects growing favorable but, in the meantime, high-minded, honest dealings must be stressed. Probe for basic values.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

An average day, perhaps, but one which you can mold quickly into a much better one through your keen intelligence and ingenuity. In certain areas, you COULD even outguess the "masters."

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Conservative, practical, happy-hearted and home-loving, with a deep respect for tradition, religion and culture. Despite a strong leaning toward the scientific, you also like art, music, a stimulating conversation. You are rarely satisfied with what you know and, with increasing knowledge, can reach lofty goals — IF you curb a Capricorn trait to fear failure. Make it a point to constantly bolster your self-confidence. You have fine abilities, so why doubt the outcomes of their use?

JACK O'BRIAN'S

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The UN's U Thant wrote barber Paul Mole (Lexington at 73rd) that he was "breaking off diplomatic relations" . . . Seems a national magazine used a photo of U in Paul's stylish clip and had the world's top diplomat no likee. . . The Orin Lehman (as we said they would be) were divorced in Mexico; Rudy Tellez (as we also said) becomes Johnny Carson's Tonight producer (he divorced his wife to wed Carson's secretary-assistant. . . Marlon Brando insists he never sees his movies and lately we wish we followed his example. . . Co-author Harvey Schmidt of "The Fantasticks" also is an artist—some of his best daubs decorate the ladies room of the Sullivan St. Playhouse (where "Fantasticks" heads for a ninth year). . . Katie Hepburn's niece Katharine Houghton (of "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner") will film another with a racial theme, "John Brown's Body". . . Broadway Mission has this sign: "First Come, First Served". . . The Jolly Shilling swears its menu's "Chicken a la Queen" is because Elizabeth II is on the throne. . . Atlanta Braves' president Bill Bartholomay will wed Gail Dillingham Hayman of the Hawaiian pineapple zillions any week; they'll live in Chicago. . . Success of young British mod-actress Carol White has been followed by failure of her marriage to singer Michael King. . . Queen Liz' hairdresser (since she was 11) "Mr. Henry" Joerin is retiring and three of Ennery's assistants are auditioning for the prestige post as Royal hairdresser. . . "The Boots of the Virgin" novel is about a Jewish matador and Jack Carter's taken the book by the horns; wants to star in it. . . Orson Bean's announcing he's shifting from liberal to conservative politics. . . Sure! . . . Famed "Father of 52nd St." Joe Helbeck (Joe ran the Onyx Club when 52nd St. was the capitol of jazz) will preside this season at the Tokeneche Club, Darien, Conn. . . "Happiness is Just a Little Thing Called a Rolls-Royce" is a pitiful little imitation of a comedy so pathetically awful that we saw one columnist abandon its sinking future after the first scene of the first act; and he was right. . . The "Playbill" of the show proclaimed the authors "have rung the bell of success" but plainly—no one answered. . . Let's honor the embarrassment of all concerned and keep their secret, without listing their names.

Cong. Bill Ryan is pushing legislation to okay citizenship for all United States aliens who are servicemen; only Vietnam War GIs are eligible automatically. . . Same day Vince (TV's Dr. Ben Casey) Edwards became a papa, another actor named Ben Casey also welcomed a baby; and both Bens' wives are named Linda. . . Sign in the Peter Pan Bake Shop in Forest Hills wasn't in apple-pie order: "All Pies 84 cents" then added, "Apple Pies 74 cents." . . Big limousine parks on W. 44th St. near the African Room several times a week (for years) and out lopes $300 millionaire Doris Duke who walks up one flight and takes her dance lesson — integrated, too. . . Simultaneous airline and railroad strikes are being plotted for the fall peak-travel season. . . There's a secret move on at CBS for 10:30 p.m. television newscasts. . . "Butch" the maitre-D at the Club 82 in Greenwich Village (female-impersonator floor show) is a grandmother—three times. . . Roberta Peters is thinking over an offer to be TV commercial-spokeslady for a car firm. . . Doc Severinson's band at the Riverboat managed to combine good jazz with a rock-beat and satisfied, almost, everyone.

Ann Landers

Don't borrow cars

Dear Ann Landers: Three weeks ago I bought my first new car. Until now I always had a second-hand katrinka. It took me two years to get the money together and I was really proud of myself. . . Friday my girl asked if she could borrow my car to go shopping. I said O.K. and gave her the keys. Three hours later she came back and said, "Gee, I'm sorry." She had run into a fire hydrant. Furthermore, she insisted that they must have put it there recently because she knows the street like the back of her hand. . . I now have a smashed fender and a broken headlight, plus a few other small dents. Total damage—$98. . . My policy is $100 deductible, which means I am not covered for anything under. My girl made no offer to pay for the damage and when I told her I thought she should have at least offered to share the cost she got mad and threw the keys in my face. . . This morning I recieved her check for $100 with a note saying, "Good-bye, you cheap heel." . . What should I do?—MARTY . . . Dear Marty: Send the doll a check for two dollars which is what you owe her. People who borrow a car should pay for whatever damage occurs when it is in their possession.

This should have been discussed when you gave your girl the keys. . . Anyone who would return a new car with a smashed fender and a broken head-light and not offer to have it repaired is a no-class clod. . . Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 and in trouble with my mother. After school a guy I know invited me to work in his darkroom. He is an amateur photographer and so am I. . . At about five o'clock my buddy's dad asked us if we wanted to ride along to deliver something in his pickup truck. The ride ended up being a two-hour trip. When I got home my mother was like crazy with worry. I had meant to call her but it slipped my mind. . . I tried to tell Mom I didn't mean to make her worry and if I had called her she would have said, "O.K. go." Why are mothers so unreasonable? Please answer in the paper for all kids with unreasonable mothers. . . VICTIM . . . Dear Vic: The problem isn't unreasonable mothers but inconsiderate kids. It would have taken you all of two minutes to make a phone call and avoid all the trouble. Next time use your noodle, son.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son (age 23) told us last night that he is marrying Marnie next month. She is a lovely girl, bright, pleasant and has gone with Ed for two years. Problem: Her parents live 40 miles from here but we've never met them. Ed says they are crazy and it's just as well we don't invite them to the wedding. . . Marnie wants to be married in our living room with only the immediate family present. She said she has no objection to their being present but doubts that they would come. What should we do? . . . RAFFLED . . . Dear Raffled: Invite Marnie's parents to the wedding and if they don't wish to come, that's up to them. . . Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You-For Teen-Agers Only" by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.
